Oshkosh — Badger Legion affairs for the next year will be guided by Frank L. Greenya, Milwaukee, who was elected commander of the Wisconsin department of the American Legion this afternoon at the Oshkosh state convention.

Miss Minnie Sprosser, Watertown, was elected state department president of the American Legion auxiliary this morning. She succeeds Mrs. Harold Miller, Appleton. Greenya received the support of 288 delegates mostly from the Fourth and Fifth Legion districts comprising Milwaukee county. H. H. Heblie, Appleton High school principal, his strongest opponent, drew his support mainly from the Ninth district and other northern posts. He received 187 votes. George Weber, Baraboo banker, polled 14 votes.

The new commander, who succeeds Henry O. Regner, West Bend, was a state vice commander and is president of the Milwaukee 1941 convention corps seeking the national convention for Milwaukee in 1941. He also is chairman of the Legion's state welfare board. In private life, Greenya is assistant director of outdoor relief in Milwaukee county.

Vice Commanders
New state vice commanders elected were William R. Kenney, Marshfield; Mills Rutherford, Columbus; William J. Huemmer, Beloit; and Knute E. Neby, Cumberland. They succeed Scott H. Cairry, Plattville; George O. Weber, Baraboo; Dr. W. P. Miller, Milwaukee; and J. F. Hanlon, O. Lakes.
Edward Jahns, Neenah, was named first sergeant at arms to succeed Val W. Ove, Milwaukee, while Harry Halberg, Menomonie, succeeded himself as second sergeant at arms.
Elected state department chaplain was the Rev. John E. Rowell, Sturgeon Bay, who succeeded the Rev. Bernard Doyle, Darington.
A. W. Pitts, Fremont, was elected commander of the Eighth district and Carl Redditt, Shawano, was elected vice commander. In the Sixth district, John Meyer, Neenah, was elected commander and George Buchholz, Princeton, was chosen vice commander.

Other auxiliary officers named are: Mrs. Charles Shager, Sharon, first vice president; Mrs. J. J. Jara-bek, Algoma, second vice president; Mrs. C. W. Hurlit, Marinette, treasurer; Mrs. Hallie Williams, Milwaukee, historian; Mrs. Courtney Reed, Prentice, chaplain; and Miss Cora Brown, Milwaukee, secretary.

Huge Parade
A throng estimated at more than 100,000 persons yesterday watched the annual parade of the Wisconsin department of the American Legion, in convention here.
The parade, which legion officials said surpassed that of the national convention at Miami, Fla., in 1934, took 3½ hours to pass a given point. An estimated 12,000 to 15,000 persons took part—legionnaires, sons of the Legion, the American Legion auxiliary, and junior auxiliaries, band, drum corps, 40 to 80 floats, national guardsmen and the 61st coast artillery anti-aircraft unit.

Reviewers included Governor Julius P. Heil and Adjutant General Ralph M. Imnell of the Wisconsin national guard.
Artillery Unit
The artillery unit, which now is training at Manitowish, provided a mile-long column with 50 pieces of equipment, including four 3-inch anti-aircraft guns, four large 50-caliber machine guns, five giant searchlights and five sound locators. Last night the artillery demonstrated wartime preparedness for night air attacks. S. J. (Speed) Wittman of Oshkosh led the "enemy" aviators who were picked up by the searchlights and sound locators.

A check showed at least 35 bands and 20 drum corps in the line of march, with about a dozen drill teams and firing squads.
The guardsmen were from Neenah, Oshkosh, Milwaukee, Oconoco-

Farm Blaze South Of Neenah Causes Damage of $15,000

Spark From Threshing
Machine Reported
Cause of Barn Fire

BULLETIN
Farmers and the Black Creek Fire department were fighting a fire at the Edward Ziegler farm, route 3, Appleton, at 2:30 this afternoon. The blaze was discovered about 2 o'clock and threatened all the farm buildings except the home. The large barn housed the season's harvest.

Neenah — A spark from a threshing machine is reported to have caused the fire at Wooden Shoe Acres, the Mrs. D. K. Allen farm three miles south of Neenah on Highway 41, which resulted in loss estimated at $12,000 to $15,000 at 7 o'clock Monday night. Earl Evans is tenant on the farm.

The large barn and its contents of hay and straw were destroyed as was the threshing machine and a bull stable in the barn. The crew was just finishing operations and cleaning up around the machine when a spark from the machine ignited the dust in the barn, it was reported. The effect was like a dynamite explosion, according to witnesses, and the flames spread rapidly in the dry hay and straw.

There is no phone at the farm and the blaze had a head start before the two town fire departments were called. Sparks from the fire ignited straw stacks on neighboring farms but they were saved. The house and granary were on the other side of the farm plot from the barn. A large crowd of people from Neenah as well as passers-by on the highway stopped to watch the fire.

City police are keeping a sharp eye for any person who seems to have been doing a little beer celebrating, especially if beer figures into the picture.

Fifteen cases of the amber fluid were reported stolen Saturday or Sunday night from a box car near S. Oneida street on the Milwaukee St. Paul and Pacific Railroad line. The seal on the car was broken by whoever took the beer.

The other rail is in the proper place. Twenty-four persons were killed and more than 60 injured in the crash.

Five Men Make Clean Get-Away After Daring $70,000 Robbery On Main Street of N. Y. Town

Long Beach, N. Y. — Five men, one of them armed with a machine gun, today robbed a bank messenger of approximately $70,000 on the main street of this summer resort town and apparently made a clean get-away.

The robbery precipitated a spectacular search by land, sea and air. Directed by wireless, police squad cars, Nassau county harbor patrol boats, United States coast guard vessels, and a police plane swept feverishly over the Long Island mainland and ocean front.

Land police, delayed in their pursuit of the bandit car by a parked truck with its rear tires punctured, blocked off the three bridges connecting with the Long Island mainland, but expressed fear they were too late.

Radio police cars halted an automobile at Massapequa, 20 miles from here on the mainland, but an investigation showed it was not their quarry.

Report Gun Fight
Early reports, lacking official confirmation, spread that police had engaged in a running gun fight with the bandits on Sunrise highway, one of Long Island's busiest parkway thoroughfares. Nassau county Police Inspector Harold R. King said he had heard nothing about it.

Edward Dodson, a messenger employed by the National City bank of Long Beach, told King he and his escort, Patrolman James Logouri, were accosted across the street from the bank as they were about to enter the postoffice to dispatch the money to the federal reserve bank.

Three men stepped from the 1938 sedan—whose license plates indicated it had been stolen in New York city recently—covered them with revolvers, disarmed Logouri and snatched the money. Waiting in the car were the driver and a man in the rear seat. The latter cradled a machine gun in his arms.

A few feet from the scene of the holdup a large truck loaded with steel girders, stood parked at right angles to the curb, its rear tires punctured by large spikes. Police said the truck, nearly blocking southbound traffic on the street, afforded a screen for the robbers to elude immediate chase. The driver of the truck was detained by Long Beach police.

While the amount of the loot was not fixed definitely several hours after the holdup, William Kearns, secretary of the Sun Indemnity company of New York city, said it would approximate $70,000. He said the messenger and patrolman made the trip daily from the bank to the post office.

U. S. Launches Extensive Probe Of Film Industry

Motion Picture Producers
Under Federal Scrutiny

Los Angeles — The federal government began a sweeping investigation today of one of the nation's largest industries, motion pictures.

Charles H. Carr, special assistant to United States Attorney General Murphy, said his three-fold probe would require about 30 days, with possible indictments filed when the grand jury is impaneled Sept. 13.

Carr filed letters from Murphy authorizing the inquiry in federal district court. They listed these points of investigation:

(1) The alleged $100,000 payment of film producers to William Bioff, representative of the International Alliance of theatrical state employment.

(2) The reorganization of Fox Films corporation and its merger in 1933-35 with Twentieth Century films, for the purpose of determining whether there was between $4,000,000 and $6,000,000 in income tax liability.

(3) The personal income tax liability of Joseph M. Schenck, vice president and chairman of the board of Twentieth Century-Fox.

Debate Shutdown Of Oil Wells to Check Price Cuts

Roosevelt Draws Praise,
Criticism as He Advances
Date of Thanksgiving Day

New York — President Roosevelt's announcement that he would break a 75-year old tradition by moving Thanksgiving day up a week—to help out business—stirred both protest and praise today from governors, turkey growers and football coaches.

The president said at Campobello island yesterday he had decided the traditional last Thursday in November was too late for Thanksgiving, so he was advancing the date from Nov. 30 to Nov. 23 this year.

Many different dates have been used since the Pilgrim fathers celebrated the first Thanksgiving in 1621, the president pointed out. He said business people had complained the "last Thursday" date established by president Lincoln usually threw the holiday too close to Christmas and cut down on Christmas shopping.

This sounds silly, President Roosevelt said, but added he was willing to go along with merchants on the matter.

Senate Concurs In Move to Erase LaFollette Plan

Bill to Wipe Out 1937
Reorganization Is Sent to Heil

Madison, Wis. — The assembly today concurred in a senate bill to wipe out the last traces of the governmental reorganization program enacted under former Governor LaFollette in 1937. It was sent to Governor Heil.

The bill was the first one introduced this session and had languished in a house committee for months before it was recalled by Republican leaders and placed on the assembly calendar. The author was Senator Harry Bolens (D) Port Washington. The house vote was 50 to 30.

Pending contemplated changes which are part of the Heil reorganization program, the bill would restore to the state board of control the same powers it formerly had. The board would assume full jurisdiction over state hospitals for mental cases and Director Grant C. Haas' department of mental hygiene, which now supervises the hospitals, would go out of existence.

The department of corrections, which was intended to control the prisons, but never assumed that function from the board of control, also would be abolished.

The bill would eliminate the office of director of the tax and public service commissions, held respectively by John G. Thiel and Calmer Browy, and restore the old secretariats. The commissions, at least for the time being, would have power to reappoint Thiel and Browy as secretaries.

Two senate bills to reorganize the public service and tax commissions are pending in the assembly.

The senate has before it the house-approved Thomson bill to abolish the board of control and create a consolidated state welfare department.

Five Killed in Crash Of British Airliner

Copenhagen — Five men, including an American, were killed in the flaming crash of a British Airways airliner into the straits of Storstrom, about 60 miles south of Copenhagen.

Pilot C. F. Wright, the only survivor, smashed a window and escaped. He was picked up by a fishing boat.

Youth Disappears After Accidentally Killing His Mother

Plainville, Conn. — A bullet fired by 16-year-old Michael Procko of Plainville, who was hunting birds, struck and killed his mother, Theresa, 43, today while she was picking corn in a field near their home.

Two other youths of the same age who were with Michael ran to the Procko home to notify the family. They were John Berlinski and John Yawin, who told investigating police it was an accident.

Dr. William T. Angle, acting medical examiner, gave an accidental death verdict.

Newly Waxed Floor Undoing of Prowler

Salt Lake City — Mrs. J. E. Mellus was awakened by a loud thud from a room where she had waxed and polished the floor yesterday at Mrs. Edward C. Kalbfus, wife of the rear admiral, as sponsor.

Seek to Prevent Collapse of Gasoline
Market
PREDICT FIGHT

Watch Effect of Production Holiday Order in Texas

Oklahoma City — A shutdown of 177,000 oil wells producing two thirds of the crude oil that provides the nation's gasoline was debated here today as a remedy for a toppling price structure.

Two schools of thought predominated as a meeting of the interstate compact commission, organized to prevent waste in the giant industry, prepared to convene.

There were those who believed the shutdown, already ordered in the vast Texas fields, would be recommended throughout the entire midcontinent area.

Others advanced the theory the meeting would collapse, with each state adopting an "after you" attitude which might eventually end in a stalemate.

The eyes of both sides were on Texas, where the railroad commission, governing body, ordered a 15-day shutdown of 87,000 wells, effective at 7 a. m. today.

Question Legality

Whether Texas, Kansas and possibly others of the compacting states would follow Texas' order hinged on legality of the decree.

Observers said it would be futile for other states to shut down unless the vast Texas fields were closed. The supply of crude oil from Texas alone, they indicated, would defeat their purpose—to push down existing stocks so that the price would rise.

Texas alone produces 1,300,000 barrels a day, average, as much as all the other midcontinent states combined.

A fight loomed in Texas to further confuse the issue.

J. S. Bridwell, large independent operator of Wichita Falls, refused to halt production.

Members of the compact are Oklahoma, Texas, Kansas, Colorado, Michigan, Illinois, New Mexico, Arkansas and Louisiana, were represented at the meeting only by observers. All but Michigan and Illinois are in the mid-continent area.

Power Is Limited

The compact commission's power is limited to making recommendations, but members of state regulatory bodies are attending the meeting to get a consensus. Few oil men believed all producing states would join in a shutdown.

The price-cutting was initiated last week by the Sinclair Prairie Oil Marketing company's 20-cent per barrel slice in crude prices. However, most of the major purchasers in the mid-continent area have not yet met the lower postings.

Oil executives point out there are about 78,000,000 barrels of gasoline in storage and tell the motorists not to worry even if the big-oil states join Texas in a production holiday.

The sudden, sharp cut in crude oil prices will cost Oklahoma about $1,500,000 yearly in gross production tax losses, observers said.

Blames Refiner

The producer places the blame on the refiner. The producer believes he is being penalized to help the refiner out of a hole. With record gasoline sales, the producer says the refiner has been making too much gasoline, glutting the market.

To the oil company which maintains a nice balance between refining and production, a cut in the price of crude is a bookkeeping operation.

What effect the crude price cut will have on gasoline prices to the motorist is disputed. One group of oil executives says the price is too low and won't go lower. Another group pulls out the case history of the industry to show that every major price cut in crude has resulted in cheaper gasoline.

Assembly Advances Bill Providing for Auto Permit Fee Cut

Madison — Taking action on four bills calling for substantial reductions in auto license fees, the assembly today approved two, killed one and delayed consideration of another.

It engrossed and advanced to ward passage the Kostuck bill calling for a general reduction of $3 on all licenses, and engrossed and re-referred to the finance committee the Niemuth measure levying a $5 fee on vehicles under 3,600 pounds and $10 on those over 3,600 pounds.

Kostuck, of Stevens Point, is a Progressive. Niemuth, of Oshkosh, is a Republican. The joint finance committee had recommended rejection of both bills.

The house killed the bill of Senator Zimny (D) Milwaukee, reducing all fees by one half, and laid over the bill by Assemblyman Ben Slater (R) Milwaukee, proposing the same reduction. These measures also had been disapproved by the finance body.

Push Search for Perpetrator of Nevada Tragedy

Authorities Question Suspects in Wreck of Streamline Train

Reno, Nev. (AP)—Hunt for the mass murderer or murderers blamed for the wreck of the streamline train "City of San Francisco" with its resultant loss of 24 lives was pushed intensively today by federal, state and railroad company officials.

A. D. McDonald, president of the Southern Pacific railroad, who came to the scene to assume direction of the investigation, expressed belief one man was responsible for the pile-up of the crack 17-car limited as it crossed a bridge over the Humboldt river about 230 miles east of here Saturday night. More than 100 were injured.

"We have some definite evidence," said McDonald, "but it is of such a nature that we do not feel free to divulge it at this time."

Question Suspects

Several men were rounded up yesterday and questioned about the disaster, including Bob La Ducre, who was held, Chief of Police Andy M. Welliver of Reno said, because he answered the description of a so-called "earless man" whose strange actions had made him one of the main objectives of the search.

Chief Welliver said La Ducre probably would be released today as T. J. McLaughlin, FBI agent, had established that the man was at Pyramid Lake, Nev., Saturday morning and could not have participated in the wreck.

Acting on information from relatives of Mrs. Henry P. Vaux of Port Ledge, Rosemont, Penn., and her daughter, Miss Susan M. Vaux, searchers found the bodies of the two in the demolished drawing car, "The Peaks." In the same car, searchers found the body of an unidentified Negro, apparently a porter.

Albert Johnson of Chicago, at first reported to have been killed in the crash, was found last night to be alive, though in critical condition, in an Elko, Nev., hospital.

CHARGE EXTORTION

Knoxville, Tenn. (AP)—FBI Agent E. R. Davis announced today Henry Parks, 28, of Cleveland, Tenn., had pleaded guilty at a preliminary hearing to charges of attempting to extort $50,000 from the Southern Railway under threat to cause a train wreck.

Parks, a stove factory employe, was arrested yesterday. He was held in $20,000 bail for the grand jury.

Davis said Parks had written to President E. E. Norris of the Southern Railway in Washington, D. C., ordering Norris to communicate by means of an advertisement to be run for a week in the Chattanooga News. Davis reported typewriters used in the case traced Parks.

Fair Races Draw Ranking Drivers

Ted Horn, Burbank, Calif., Enters Automobile Events

Milwaukee (AP)—Strong entries, officials said today, assured outstanding events next week in the automobile races and harness trials scheduled at the Wisconsin state fair.

Ten Horn, Burbank, Calif., and Hawthorne, N. J., pilot, filed his entries for the automobile races booked for three days. Horn qualified for the Indianapolis classic Memorial day with a speed in excess of 127 miles per hour, and finished fourth in the 500-mile grind.

Automobile sprint programs will be staged on the state fair park speedway next Sunday, Aug. 20, and Thursday, Aug. 24. The national 10-mile championship will be run Sunday, Aug. 27. All races have been sanctioned by the American Automobile Association.

August Born, assistant superintendent of speed, announced four days of harness racing—next Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday. The free-for-all trot and free-for-all pace will highlight the events next Wednesday.

Boy Scout officials announced that advance registrations indicated that more than 6,000 boys would attend the second annual Boy Scout and youth day at the fair Aug. 26.

Communist party, Nazi band or similar organizations by aliens should be sufficient cause for denial of citizenship, expressed support for the attempt to deport Bridges.

"We suggest," said a formal statement issued by Mickelson, "that these anti-labor elements in the American Legion who are responsible for the legion's attack on Harry Bridges keep their noses out of the CIO and mind their own business."

"Calling for the deportation of Harry Bridges while a hearing on the merits of such deportation is still in progress is an un-American piece of conviction without hearing," the statement continued.

Racine (AP)—Chief of Police Robert W. Blumer announced today that the city's new police radio system will begin continuous operation for contact with squad cars after Wednesday of this week.

Receive Record Number of Entries for Seymour Fair

Seymour—First day entries for the Seymour fair surpassed all records for an entire fair of the past years. All day Sunday entries poured into the office. The 4-H club entries alone total 270, at present making 30 more than those of any previous year. This number will make the largest 4-H club display of any Seymour fair. With those of the Future Farmers the 300 mark will be reached.

On Monday morning the Seymour fair association had the cattle and horse barns filled to capacity and tents are being put up for the calves. In all the open spaces the spaces are filling up to capacity. In less than 10 minutes Monday morning one lady had entered 40 entries for the Pony Store department.

The fair association will accept all entries and room will be made available. All of the Future Farmers entries are not yet in and another big entry day was looked for on Monday and each day up to Thursday at 6 o'clock in the afternoon, the date for closing the entries.

Record Year

From all indications this year undoubtedly will be a record year. This is the greatest beginning of any fair Seymour has had.

The 4-H clubs of Outagamie county held their demonstrations at the fair grounds on Sunday from 10 o'clock in the morning to 4:30 in the afternoon. Nearly 400 people were in attendance. Winners were chosen and these will represent Outagamie county 4-H clubs at the state fair.

In the dairy cattle judging in the junior contest held in preparation for the state fair first place was won by Charles Jenkins and second place by Harold Blanshan. Both boys are members of the local chapter of the F. F. A. Thirty boys participated in this contest.

bor's enemies, because they belong to a party, when that party has proven itself anti-labor."

The executive board of the federation accused the state legislature of "acts of political vandalism" in its enactment of new legislation affecting labor and education.

The board, in its report to the opening session of the federation's state convention, also charged the national labor relations board had favored the CIO.

Declaring the federation could protect labor's rights through courts and its economic power, the board said the "new" education, "launched by a hostile state legislature, is quite different."

"Mischievous as is the curbing of the rights of labor, the legislative attack on public education is by far the most damaging and cowardly," the report continued. "The political ogre is now attempting to embrace the whole system of education from the kindergarten to the university. The raiment of appropriations has been torn to shreds and the order given to cut enrollment, teacher training and educational service."

"The elementary schools, it is proposed, are again to be placed under the tender guardianship of politicians."

The report charged the national labor relations board had warned an employer against entering into a union shop agreement with an A. F. of L. local.

"We find that this is invariably done to accommodate a protest from a CIO group which desires time to campaign for CIO strength," the report said.

Discussing a recent announcement of John L. Lewis, CIO president, that he would build a building, the CIO would recommend that the full weight of its influence and the resources of the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor be made available in support of the building trades unions against the encroachment of disruptive elements."

"The renewed attempt of the CIO to control the building trades is clear evidence of the real purpose of secession leaders and exposes the falsity of their assurances that they are 'merely organizing the un-organized,'" the report declared.

A resolution was introduced by Local 1 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees charging that hazards to health and safety exist in state institutions and asking an investigation by the state industrial commission.

Other resolutions asked:

That the federation renew efforts to patch up the differences between the A. F. of L. and the CIO.

That A. E. of L. truck drivers unions recede from a recent decision and recognize all picket lines of union men.

That the convention go on record as opposed to fascism, nazism and communism.

That no member be allowed to serve on a committee or act as a delegate unless he is a registered voter.

Old Settlers Reunion Recalls 85-Year History of Ogdensburg

Ogdensburg—While the old Settlers forty-fifth annual reunion to be held here Thursday, Aug. 17, is a county event, it also has a special local aspect as it is 85 years ago this year that the first survey of this territory was made by the late George Taggart, Sr., and the village of Ogdensburg platted by the late C. S. Ogden, a native of New York, founder of this town arrived here that year and built the first store.

He also built a sawmill here that year, which burned five years later, then he built a grist mill which burned before it made some flour.

Named After Founder

The town was named for him, Ogdensburg, and a post office granted in 1858. N. Livermore was the first postmaster here and the mail was carried here from Waupaca by Mr. Ogden.

The first religious services held in the village were in 1854 by Rev. E. W. Green at the home of Mr. Ogden. Two churches were built here in 1866, a Methodist and a Baptist, the first school house had been erected 11 years previous.

Mr. Ogden was admitted to the bar at the first term of court held in Waupaca county which was in the Miller store building in the village of Mukawa in 1854.

In 1857, Attorney Ogden was elected district attorney and in 1861 county judge.

Fight for County Seat

Ogdensburg was started with the expectation of getting the county seat. So long as the fight kept up between Weyauwega and Waupaca, for its removal from Mukawa to one of those towns Ogdensburg remained hopeful and helped each place alternately, each town pledging its support to Ogdensburg if they failed to get it themselves.

Finely Weyauwega gave up the fight, New London entered the contest and put forth much effort to secure it, but the county seat was finally located in Waupaca, to which city Judge Ogden moved.

He was the founder of two newspapers in Waupaca, the Waupaca Republican in 1868 and the Waupaca Post in 1877.

This village is again furnishing a prominent public official in the person of Congressman Reid Murray.

2 1-2-Year-Old Tot Lost In Woods for 24 Hours Is Returned Unharmed

Battle Lake, Minn. (AP)—Out of a swamp, a plaintive wail for "Mommy" shined through the still, damp air last night.

Selmer Nelson, herding a flock of turkeys, heard the cry and, perplexed, went to see what this was all about. He soon found a cold, hungry, thirsty boy, mosquito-bitten and scratched by thorns, and thus ended a 24-hour search for 24 year old Kent Olson.

Upward of 600 men had been hunting for the tot since he wandered off from the Stanley Askeroth farm, near Battle Lake, 20 miles east of Fergus Falls, late Sunday while his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Olson, inspected some farm equipment. He had wandered about a mile and a half.

State Almost 'Broke,' Has Only $5,000,000 in Its Treasury

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—Funds on hand in the state treasury today are less than at a corresponding period in any recent year, an examination of the state's financial condition disclosed today.

With the state losing huge amounts of potential tax revenues daily as the legislature struggles with the problem of enacting new taxes, the treasury on August 1 showed a balance in the general fund of only slightly less than $5,000,000. Since that time, officials report, that balance has declined to about $4,600,000.

With disbursements during the month of July totaling almost $13,500,000, and receipts totaling only about $9,500,000, funds on hand reached the lowest level remembered by officials in the capital.

Larger Receipts

The $5,000,000 balance can be compared with more than $12,000,000 at the same time in 1937, and $11,800,000 balance on August 1 last year.

Reassuring, however, are the receipts from current taxes, most important of which are the collections from gasoline and liquor and sales, and the fact that no large amounts of state aids will become due until later in the fall, and December, when state aids to counties for highways will become payable.

Consistent increases have been shown in liquor, beer, and gas taxes during the summer months. In July for example, beverage taxes raised $264,933, compared with only $238,144 during July of last year.

During July liquor consumed contributed $355,364 to the treasury in contrast with $249,846 during same month of last year.

Gasoline tax revenues have increased over last year for every month of 1939 except April, indicating that the $20,902,000 total realized last year probably will be exceeded this year.

It was pointed out today that delay on the revenue bills in the legislature is continued, the administration may have to revise its estimates on the receipts of certain taxes which have been proposed. The cigarette tax, for example, is a sales tax and revenue will begin to flow in immediately upon passage. The $6,000,000 biennial yield was based on the expectation that the tax would be effective two full years. According to present indications, however, it will hardly become effective before September, so that nearly 10 per cent will have to be subtracted from the estimated yield of the tax.

Stud Alvin Schabo was guest preacher Sunday morning at the English service at St. Matthew Lutheran church. The Bible class took a trip to the Bethesda Lutheran church, where it was held at Watertown after a German service.

"Soul" was the subject of the sermon for Sunday at First Church of Christ, Scientist. The following passage was quoted from "Science and Health with Key Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Soul and Spirit being one, God a Soul are one, and this one new life, in a limited mind or a limited body, is the substance of life, and intelligence of man, which is individualized, but not in matter. Soul can never reflect anything inferior to Spirit. Soul or Spirit signifies Deity and nothing else."

Dr. Ira E. Schlegel, district superintendent of Appleton district of the Methodist church, has a busy schedule today. Sunday he conducted fourth marriage conferences at Niagara and Goodman and Monday he was at Minocqua and Mercer. He is at Tomahawk today and will be at Amherst Friday.

Bell spoke on "The Dinosaurs Mind," while at First Methodist church, Dr. Harry C. Culver, pastor, spoke on "An Appreciation of the Baptist Church."

Young Democrats Use Old Strategy At Annual Confab

Lawrence Points to Several "Mistakes" Made At Convention

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington—Whether the convention of Young Democrats has contributed anything to the cause of the party justifying the adjective "young" is a matter of considerable doubt among those Democrats who, as to their years alone, might consent to the adjective "old."

For, examined closely, the strategy of the Young Democrats' convention resembled very much what would be expected of a political convention of old deal days.

Only the political recklessness of youth, for example, can explain the publicity flowing out of the Pittsburgh convention condemning the Hatch law when the head of the party, the president who was lauded in the resolutions adopted, actually said, when signing the measure, that it was "at least a step in the right direction."

It is not often that political strategists miscue. For, while the president may not have liked the Hatch bill a bit more than do the Young Democrats, he publicly gave the impression of great enthusiasm and went to the length of pointing out that the "essence" of this great reform was to be found in a paragraph in his message to congress Jan. 5, 1939.

But the Young Democrats made another mistake. They permitted the biggest third-term-for-Roosevelt publicity to emanate from Mayor Kelly of Chicago, of the far famed Kelly-Nash machine. If there is any psychological virtue supposed to attach to these "Young Democratic" and "Young Republican" movements, it is that rejuvenated party members presumably have nothing in common with old deals and old machine politics. To broadcast speeches and statements, therefore, suggesting that federal officeholders should not have been prohibited by law from re-appointing actively in politics and urging incidentally a third term for Roosevelt ideals, will stamp the young Democratic movement as just as eager for political power at any cost as the followers of the newly christened school of "evil old men," otherwise known as elder statesmen, are supposed to be.

Backs Garner
Speaking of "evil old men," among whom John Lewis sought to classify Vice President Garner, it is significant that the majority leader of the house of representatives, Samuel Rayburn of Texas, the man who has been fighting the battles of the administration this last session, has come out publicly for Mr. Garner for the presidency in 1940.

Representative Rayburn took cognizance of the John Lewis effort to make Mr. Garner seem a reactionary and pronounced the vice president instead a "great liberal." If Mr. Rayburn, majority leader of the house, considers Mr. Garner a liberal, can the Young Democrats or any other Democrats characterize the vice president effectively as a "reactionary conservative?"

The Democratic plot plainly thickens and very soon it will be necessary to call for a definition again of what is a liberal and what is a conservative. If Vice President Garner could be persuaded to talk, he probably would begin by defining himself as a "reactionary conservative," who stands or sits pat for that matter, and he might say that advocates of the sit-down strike are by no means liberals but trespassers and squatters.

If one omits Vice President Garner's opposition to the sit-down strike, you find him far away from the conservative side of the argument. He denounces the sit-down strike as perhaps the most un-American act of liberalism or conservatism, but of asking for obedience to law and order.

Not Enough
Mr. Garner has been a supporter of most all New Deal measures. He quietly helped pass the public utility holding company bill. He was behind every New Deal reform except the currency and the increased spending. All this is not enough, however, from a New Deal viewpoint.

The acid test of liberalism, it will have to be conceded, is the one applied by the New Deal itself, and that is whether the Wagner Labor act is to be sabotaged or amended only minor particulars. Despite all the canting about not a matter of liberalism or conservatism, the law is the key to the fight over servative and liberal candidates. That's why, while there are many New Dealers who would have preferred some other method of attack, the outburst of Mr. Lewis now appears on reflection not at all as a spur-of-the-moment affair, but a premeditated broadside against the foe of the sit-down strike by the CIO, principal ally of the New Deal.

So far as sit-down strikes are concerned, it is an open question whether the Democratic party's "evil old men" or "young" hopefuls are going to relish handling a demand for a denunciation of sit-down strikes to be inserted in the

The lower picture shows the first floor plan including the mayor's office and offices for the city clerk, treasurer, engineer and assessor. ## Zimmerman Loses Fight to Retain License Division

Auditing Again Becomes Principal Duty of Secretary of State

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—Former Governor Fred R. Zimmerman, now Republican secretary of state, took two sound defeats at the hands of the Republican legislature and the Heil leadership last week as the legislature sheared from his department many of its functions and much of its personnel.

With the passage of the administration-sponsored motor vehicle bureau bill, and the county board measure to turn over the distribution of auto licenses to county clerks, the secretary of state's office will lose the duties which in late years have made it far more important than the men who formulated the state government intended it to be. The office will again be the central auditing office of the state government and little more.

Zimmerman fought strenuously to defeat the consolidated motor vehicle bill, and almost as vigorously against county automobile licensing. The wishes of Governor Heil went out in the former, however, while legislators feeling the demands from local courthouses overruled his wishes on the license distribution bill.

The secretary of state was originally the state auditor. In fact, in many states the office is called the state auditor's office. During the last decade or two, however, new functions were added to the department functions which in the number of employees and the amount of work overshadowed the original functions of the department.

Handy Publicity
As the distributor of some 800,000 motor vehicle license plates each year, with their attendant correspondence, the secretary of state was in a favorable position from the standpoint of publicity. Politicians have long looked upon the secretary of state's office as a logical stepping-stone to the governorship. The office once won, was easier than other offices to retain, as was shown by the long tenure of Zimmerman, and his immediate predecessor, Theodore Dammann, who is now being mentioned as a candidate for governor by Progressives.

Some observers held out the belief today that Governor Heil will veto the bill providing for county licensing of automobiles. However, a veto would not help Zimmerman, for the state license bureau by the provisions of the other administration bill would become a part of the consolidated motor division.

Principal arguments for the distribution of licenses by county clerks is that it will promote economy. However, the state has always handled the job, so proponents are able to point only to the expense of other states to prove their point.

Pegler Hopes That if Duce Is Ill It Is Nothing Trivial

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—Although Mr. Bud Ekins of the United Press has been kicked out of Italy there is still ground for hoping that the report which brought on this retaliation is true. The U.P. disseminated in this country a report heard in London that Mussolini had suffered a heart attack. The duce had fainted out of his army maneuvers and the maneuvers themselves were abruptly curtailed, and it must be assumed that if he did have a heart attack Rome would deny it. The denial therefore means nothing, and those who were briefly cheered need not despair on that account.

Not even his reappearance in public need be accepted as complete refutation, although it is, to be sure, slightly depressing, because it is not impossible for persons having cardiac troubles to rebound quickly. Indeed, if he was stricken, his public appearance soon afterward would suggest that he must have another and worse one reasonably soon. Rest and resignation are the remedies commonly prescribed, and if Mussolini denied himself the customary treatment in order to make a showing he will have imposed a strain on his heart which will reveal its effect in time.

Meanwhile, it should be kept in mind that under the conditions imposed on foreign correspondents in Italy and Germany, the chances of error are many more than the actual errors would suggest. We do not know the authority for this report, but anyone who knows the personnel and methods of the American press in the foreign field would be tempted to assume that it originated in Rome and was relayed to London, and that the London date line was camouflage.

The Italians and Germans have a habit of transcribing telephone conversations on wax records so one would guess that the phone was not used in this case. But it would have been possible to whisper the news to some trusted acquaintance leaving Rome for Paris, and for that person to communicate it to the Paris bureau for relay to London. They also have a trick of planting false information with persons who are suspected of having secret dealings with American journalists so that when the reports show up in print they know whom to grab. And they further have a trick of planting propaganda in such a way that a journalist coming upon it thinks he has made a discovery, whereas the same stuff given out as an official release, would be turned down or strongly coppered.

System of Censorship Makes Reporters Nervous
The Italian and German system of censorship, lately adopted by Russia, and in a minor way by President Roosevelt, too, is one of intimidation and harassment as distinguished from the simpler method of examining all dispatches and deleting parts or suppressing all. Under this system, a journalist is held accountable for everything that he sends, but is given no definite understanding of the rules or limits. He never knows when he sends a story whether he will be kicked out with his wife, the canary and the cat, on 24 hours notice or called down to the press bureau to be lectured or threatened by some swollen little politician. This business of calling a foreign journalist on the carpet and warning him time and again that the tone of a story was unfriendly or ruling that the facts were incorrect when the reporter knows they were absolutely true has an effect on the nerves of the victim. He may become shy and shade his copy so as to avoid offense or, in the contrary, get sore and shoot the works, in which case the fly-cops come around to help him pack his stuff and boot him over the border.

Roosevelt Has Used The Harassment Method.
Mr. Roosevelt adopted the harassment and intimidation method recently with Lyle Wilson, the chief of the U. P.'s Washington bureau, lecturing him on one occasion on the tone or treatment of a political article, and denouncing the U. P. for fakery a short time later, in the case of a news item on which the two reporters involved sat pat. If, hereafter, Wilson must honestly report some political development unfavorable to the president, he may be accused of vengeance. Mr. Roosevelt has put him on the spot.

The removal of Mussolini from the troubled scene just now or soon might be no great boon, because nobody can predict what would happen then. Nevertheless, if he were to dissolve the democratic peoples, after Monte Cristo, would raise a finger and a cry of "one."

Ordinarily it is in bad taste or worse to exult at such news, and possibly some will stretch that rule to include even Mussolini. But if he was sick can't we at least remark, as Irvin Cobb did when his city editor was ill, "Dear, dear, I hope it is nothing trivial."

It is estimated that 5,000 high schools in 33 states teach traffic safety to students.

Christians Will Seek High Court Decision in Suit

Notice of Appeal in Damage Action Is Served On City Attorney

New London — Giles H. Putnam, city attorney, was served a notice of appeal to the supreme court yesterday by Walter Melchor as attorney for Mr. and Mrs. Byron Christian in a suit seeking damages for the death of their son.

Byron, Jr., the 14-year old son of the Christians, was electrocuted Aug. 3, 1937 by a fallen wire which was part of electric lighting equipment belonging to the city of New London.

A circuit court jury awarded damages of $4,760 when it found the city to be negligent but it was set aside by the court upon a question of law. The plaintiffs claim the city owned public utility violated provisions of the electric code. If this theory is sustained, the attorneys state that the city would be liable for treble damages of $14,280. The plaintiffs contend that the municipally owned public utility is liable the same as a privately owned plant. The question has never been decided by the supreme court under the present statutes.

"I WILL BE FIRST TO TELL YOU."

We have not seen any direct admission by the President concerning the numerous blunders in which he has indulged.

But the other day he quietly signed an act of congress suspending or freezing certain payroll taxes by industry that will save employers over 900 millions. And that act is the most contrite confession in history.

Back when Mr. Roosevelt was accepting and inventing every smiling idea to which socialism gave birth the Post-Crescent warned its readers that if he kept on at that rate, and stayed in office until the natural results of his blunders appeared, he might leave the White House the most discredited of its presidents.

Specifically the Post-Crescent had in mind at the time the Gibraltar-sized blunder of trying old age income and unemployment insurance at the same time and hoisting the tremendous cost of these undertakings upon industry, and therefore the country.

We characterized the adventure as reckless. We made bold to say that a careful man, a wise president, would have put old age income, long over-due, in operation and then rested on his oars until the country has been able to absorb the change.

The result is now known to all and the 900 million dollar retreat tells an undeniable story.

Mr. Roosevelt's policies in this respect have been somewhat akin to the boy let loose in a candy store or a colt that gets into the oat bin. That gastronomic disturbance commonly known as colic is bound to follow. It was our noble president who gave the country that sort of a pain in its mid rib because he lacked the quiet reserve and studious judgment of a great executive.

In politics those men who call themselves Progressives and are often referred to as liberals have in general supported plans to make improvements in respect to equality of rights and distribution of wealth step by step as the country can digest them without going into convulsions. Mr. Roosevelt, a highly impractical man, saw no reason for inquiring into the workability of plans which accounts for his acceptance of every siren's song so long as the music was attractive.

Now we must retreat. Now we have retreated. But in the meantime we have harmed industry, we have created more unemployment, we have wasted the hundreds of millions of payroll taxes already collected.

But, "I will be the first to tell you."

MILLIONS IN AVOIDED TAXES

The indictment of Mr. Annenberg for the wilful avoidance of over $3,000,000 in taxes during a period of five years was easily the most important piece of news published last week.

When the government finds that a man has evaded taxes it may proceed against him by civil suit and levy, which is the ordinary method, or it may add to this method a criminal indictment based upon the claim that no mere mistake was involved with this taxpayer but, instead, a deliberate and fraudulent attempt to avoid the law's demand.

Criminal indictments of this nature have heretofore fared poorly. The reason for this may be laid at the door of the income tax law itself. Reading it one may wonder whether it was not written by a stutterer whose work was hardly improved by those who followed him and covered it with patches and bandages.

Juries have been hostile to guilty verdicts because they have come to realize that if a council of wise men tried to apply this law they would soon quarrel among themselves. Banker Mitchell, whose case appeared as one of the most flagrant, was acquitted. And it must be remembered that he made no denial of the curious transaction whereby he sold several million dollars worth of securities to his wife, took her note for the purchase price and then when interest was due on the note to himself gave her a present of sufficient money to pay the same. Banker Mitchell merely claimed that under the law as it was written he considered her had a right to avoid taxes by means of this trapeze work.

It is a reflection upon the country that so important a law remains in such a foggy condition.

If Mr. Annenberg is convicted it will be because the evidence of his wilfulness was even plainer than that of Banker Mitchell's. And how this could result short of some letter he may have written to a friend telling him how he gypped the government is not easy to imagine.

LA FOLLETTE AS A MILITARY AUTHORITY

Many friends and admirers regard Senator La Follette as a statesman but Wisconsin's senior representative at Washington bids fair to qualify as a military strategist.

Before the Legion meeting at Oshkosh the Senator declared himself in favor of a policy "that any fighting this country does should be on its own soil and not in Europe."

Military men from Alexander to Hindenberg would heartily approve the Senator's declaration of strategy. They could detail the tremendous obstructions to success in any venture that involves transportation of millions of men thousands of miles and then supporting them there. No one has tried to visualize what would happen to America if it were caught with an army of five million abroad on a campaign that failed and was then deserted by its allies. Allies, properly enough, from an international standpoint, should be first concerned with their own hides.

When the walled town was the fighting unit the attackers spent all their ingenuity trying to make the besieged come out and fight them. Historical papers are replete with methods employed to this end, some of them ludicrous enough to make the twentieth century reader weep, but that was the sort that often so angered those who sat upon the walls that they attempted sorties and sometimes fell. One of the means employed in Italy with success was to make an effigy of the duke of the attacked town by dressing either a pig or a monkey in his raiment and parading him around the walls with many jeers and catcalls.

If we laugh at the army that came out from a position of safety to attack because of these mere insults what might we say of a nation that would needlessly go thousands of miles to back up someone else's quarrel?

Defeat is not necessarily disgrace for a people but tomfoolery is.

If Senator La Follette is defeated for re-election in 1940 we might suggest his appointment as military adviser to Congress. Certainly that would be a great field for pioneering, for in the past we have had many members of Congress and an occasional President whose ideas of war were rather story-book.

BUT FOR WHOSE RELIEF?

A Republican leader in Illinois is kicking up a good deal of dust because the sales tax created in that state for the paraded purpose of relief is going largely to an increased personnel of payrollers.

Figures offered the public in the state to the south of us indicate that the relief fund never received over 52 per cent of the moneys received from the sales tax and that that percentage has been gradually dropping until it is now down to 30. It is quite all right, perhaps it is even necessary, to bring up facts of this kind in order to remind a constantly negligent public but, really, there is nothing extraordinary about it.

We are invariably given a subtle list of doleful reasons to obtain consent to an increased levy of taxes. But after the law is enacted and the golden stream starts flowing into the treasury those who so tearfully listed the beneficent purposes to which the funds were to be devoted, too often appear interested in getting the rest of the family on the payroll and a lot of friends as well.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

PRELUDE TO LONELINESS

I hear a car stop on the quiet street;
The rush of happy feet:
Young laughter sounds above the motor's hum.
It is not you who come!
My floors are silent. No quick footsteps bear
Upon the carpets. There
Are no gay voices calling through the rooms.
No rose of youth perfumes
The heavy air, for all my children went Away with deep content
And happy plans. They left a gloomy house
Which I cannot arouse.
This is a prelude to my loneliness
When shorn of their cares,
Life will have lost its present joyful truth
In their too-quickly vanished youth.

DODGING THE ISSUE

Congressman Joshua L. Johns, member of congress from the eighth district, recently wrote a letter back to a signer of a petition to whom he said:
"I want you personally, and those who signed this petition, to know there is no one to blame for the present WPA law except the Democratic administration. It isn't the kind of a law that I would have written and if it had not been for the sole purpose of keeping people from starving to death and they were able to remedy the situation which is most deplorable, I would never have voted for it."
This law was written by Democrats, approved by the president of the United States and congress passed it at the urgent request of the Democratic administration. There is no reason to shift the responsibility to any one else.
Congressman Johns was a member of the house which voted for this measure, and there isn't any evidence that he protested at any time. WPA was amended by its political ene-

DALE HARRISON'S In Old New York

New York—There hasn't been a bang-up feud around New York for quite a spell. This is a very depressing situation, on account of there is nothing that peeps one up quite so much as a nice feud. During Prohibition we had some honeys, but they lacked class. It was interesting to observe two gangsters cleaning their pistols against the day when one or the other of them would cut his initials in his enemy's heart with bullets, but it wasn't any, too refined.

At the moment we have a fairish feud going on between those two professional athletes, Mr. Zeke (Bananas) Bonura of New Orleans, La., and the New York Giants baseball club, and Mr. Leo (Lippy) Durocher, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers. The war hasn't amounted to very much from a spectator's standpoint to date, but one never can tell. Good feudists always bide their time.

Mr. Bonura plays first base for the Giants. One day early this summer Mr. Durocher, having hit a ball, ran with the speed of a gazelle to first base. Arriving there, Mr. Durocher's spiked shoe came calamitously close to Mr. Bonura's. This is an incident of baseball which invariably links the man whose foot is endangered, and Mr. Bonura was no exception. Hot words were spoken, and all of a sudden Mr. Bonura swung four fingers and a thumb, all nicely pulled together, in Mr. Durocher's direction. I think it was, or vice versa. Anyway, the boys were angry.

A feud was born. Whenever the two met thereafter on the playing field, the spectators sat tense, waiting for one of the athletes to commit an overt act that would give the feud impetus. Mr. Bonura is a big man, Mr. Durocher is not; but Mr. Durocher has always been a big and abundant giver-out of conversation, and he has let it be known that Mr. Bonura's bulk does not dismay him. Lippy Leo is a disciple of that school whose motto is: "The bigger they are, the harder they fall."

The data set down above is a matter of common, as the saying goes, knowledge. We now get to the Inside Stuff. Mr. Durocher and Mr. Bonura both reside at the same hotel but on different floors. The hotel's Worrying Department, which abhors brawls and fistfights on its premises, has aged considerably over the presence of these two feudists under the same roof. The Worrying Department fears that some day the Messrs. Durocher and Bonura will by chance get into the same elevator at the same time. The very thought of such a situation brings beads of cold sweat to the Worrying Department's brow. In its mind's eye it can picture the car speeding upward while the two athletes, livid with rage and feuding on all six, devastate each other with flying fists.

As a consequence of this tickish situation, the elevator operators have been instructed to be on the qui vive as we say in Paris, to prevent any untoward event. If Mr. Bonura enters an elevator, it immediately whisks him to his floor, and the same goes for Mr. Durocher. If Mr. Durocher happens to be coming down, and the signal rings for a stop at Mr. Bonura's floor, the elevator operator pays the signal no heed, on account of it might be Mr. Bonura.

Mr. Ezra Stone, the Brooklyn redhead who at the age of 20 was a stage and radio star and who in the autumn will be Broadway producer (What? No opportunity for young men today, traveled from Coney Island to Rockefeller Center the other night in 18 minutes, and if you think that isn't fast try doing it some time in an hour and a half.

Ezra was playing at a Coney Island theatre. The show closed at 11 p. m. and he was due to make a broadcast from Rockefeller Center at 11:30. For a bright young man like Ezra (this was child's play. He had an ambulance which raced him, with screaming siren, across Brooklyn, the East River and Manhattan in 18 minutes.

Mr. Stone thought that there might be some public interest in his exploit so he telephoned the photographers to be at Rockefeller Center at 11:25, which was when he hoped to make it. He arrived at 11:18—ahead of the photographers, and so, rather than disappoint them, he had the ambulance cruise him around the block at a snail's pace until the lens men got there.

Looking Backward

25 YEARS AGO

Tuesday, Aug. 18, 1914

German troops, hoping for a decisive battle over the French, were reported only 15 miles from the French border. A dispatch said that 15,000 Austrians were killed by the Serbians in a mountain battle. The seat of the Belgian government was moved to Antwerp. From Rome came word that the Austrian torpedo boat No. 19 struck a mine in Pola Harbor and sank, carrying 19 with her.

The war was having its effect on the pulp and paper industries in the Fox river valley, prices for raw materials steadily advancing. A heavy rainfall after three weeks of drought was a boon to crops in the Appleton area. The rain proved the YM.C.A. pool, under the process of construction, to be well built. Four feet of water stood in the tank when workmen arrived in the morning.

10 YEARS AGO

Tuesday, Aug. 13, 1929

The Oney John Balliet trophy at the American Legion was awarded the Penned trophy at the state convention in Kenosha and Commander James D. Balliet was presented with the shield. The trophy was awarded for the post's outstanding civic accomplishments.

A story by Miss Ellen M. Balliet, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Balliet, was accepted for publication in the St. Nicholas magazine. It was entitled "About Observing Children." The Butte des Morts golf team defeated the Oneida Golf and Riding club players 53-22 in a match at Appleton. Frank Walsh, Butte des Morts' pro shot a 70 in beating Harley O. Denny of the Green Bay club.

Mr. and Mrs. Johns was one of the outstanding reasons why you have a changed law. He voted for the law in its present state hopeful of humiliating the Democrats, and now he runs to cover. If Mr. Johns didn't think that the law was what it should be why didn't he protest? When the full facts are written about WPA legislation Mr. Johns will have a difficult time dodging responsibility. A bloc of congressmen opposed the WPA solely for political reasons, and Mr. Johns was one of them.

We hope to see the day when it will not be necessary to have WPA but until that day arrives this nation owes a responsibility to the unemployed. The appropriation was cut at the request of Mr. Johns and his followers. No one in the congress of the United States can dodge the responsibility for this piece of legislation. Way back in January when congress convened the opposition developed to the WPA because it was said that it was an administration measure and that opposition was a continued insistent ever since. Because it was a continued insistent ever since it was offensive to those who were enemies of the New Deal and they did their work silently, under cover, mostly in committee.

Broking Mr. Johns at his word when he says that the law "isn't" the kind of a law that I would have written" then why didn't he oppose it? From January to July, six months, ought to give a man plenty of time in which to act if he wanted to.—Sheboygan Press.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—It appears now that the Administration flounders on foreign policy, administered in the Senate, can be traced to a tactical blunder in selecting a group, far removed from anything directly to do with foreign affairs—the Senate steering committee.

Grover

Each year finds only a few committee members that decides who is to get what committee assignments. Ordinarily the majority leader is in much the master of the committee, as it is supposed to be a sort of an advisory body to aid him in assigning members to committees. In a well-oiled party organization, enough "loyal" members will be assigned to any committee to keep the party in control. Senators likely to kick over the traces will be put where their votes can't hurt.

Each year finds only a few committee members that decides who is to get what committee assignments. Ordinarily the majority leader is in much the master of the committee, as it is supposed to be a sort of an advisory body to aid him in assigning members to committees. In a well-oiled party organization, enough "loyal" members will be assigned to any committee to keep the party in control. Senators likely to kick over the traces will be put where their votes can't hurt.

The steering committee that Senator Barkley, as majority leader, found at hand when he took over from the late Joe Robinson, was fairly well sprinkled with anti-administration members. A hard-shelled leader might have thrown it out so he could choose another. Then he would depend on his ability to quell any resulting rebellion.

Three Positives Change. Barkley didn't do that. There were perhaps extenuating circumstances. He was elected majority leader by a margin of one vote.

Now we get back to the Senate foreign relations committee. A steering committee loyal to the Administration never would have allowed Senator Clark of Missouri to succeed the late J. Ham Lewis on the foreign relations committee. Clark's opposition to the Administration has been known for years. Yet he got the job.

Similarly, Senators Reynolds of North Carolina and Gillette of Iowa would not have got the seats left by the defeat of Senator Duffey of Wisconsin and the transfer of Senator Charles McNary to another committee. Reynolds is flatly opposed to the Administration's foreign policy. Gillette could not be expected to remain loyal, since New Dealers tried to purge him in 1938.

But they, too, got the jobs. The result was that the Administration, on policy matters, was actually in the minority on the important foreign relations committee. It had lost three and the opposition had gained three members. Two instances will show how it worked.

The Administration tried to get the mandatory embargo cut out of the neutrality act. At no time could it muster enough votes to report the revised bill out of the floor of the Senate. It finally was shelved by a 12-11 vote in the committee.

The bill to permit the army and navy to help equip American nations with American-made defense weapons dangled in committee for months. Only a minority of the committee was against it, but it was a big enough minority to load bad on a policy bill. Finally, late in the session, the House passed the bill first and it came to the Senate.

Although the foreign relations committee then reported out the bill as passed by the House, it lay on the calendar for several days before Pittman could round up enough committee support on the floor of the Senate to help match the opposition. It then was within a hair's breadth of finally passing and a threat filibuster by Senator Vandenberg killed it.

Both bills are scheduled to come up early next session. By agreement with Republican leaders, the Neutrality embargo bill will come up early in January. The South American arms bill already is on the calendar and will stay there. But meantime the Administration must face the world for five months with its foreign policy in confusion.

Just a Step Behind the News

By Dave Boone

It looks as if Mussolini was in the unusual position of keeping cool, not to say frigid, in a crisis. Europe thinks he has let Herr Hitler know that he would just as soon wait for a war instead of making it a rush order.

Being a partner of Hitler strikes Benito as okay as long as the partnership don't get beyond the telephone, cablegram and newsreel stage. But, when it comes right down to actual war, the big question in any partnership is, who gets what, and if so can he get it without seeing his lawyer?

Partners in a war should share the losses, the reversals, the tough breaks and the muscle bruises, and Mussolini may be afraid his partner would let him have more than his share. Italy and Germany might win a war, but they would both know they had been in a fight. The fact they felt pretty sick wouldn't be softened by the fact it was a partnership sickness, and my hunch is that Benito knows it.

Even if the axis won a war in a few quick smashes and brought Europe to its knees, I guess Benito knows there is a big question where he would come in. The real war would come when he tried to get his end of the jackpot.

WE WONDER, TOO

Del Rio, Tex. (AP)—Jim Nett is hunting a rattlesnake and wondering what a commander in the N. S. Navy wants with a rattlesnake hat band. He said he had a letter from a friend, who is a naval commander, making the unusual request.

PROGRESS AND ECONOMIC REFORM

Under the CAPITAL DOME

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—Whatever the new tax bill which the senate Republicans and Democrats hope to whip together, this week contains, it is important to remember, that it cannot be called a Heil tax bill in the sense that it was personally endorsed by the governor.

After sending down to the legislature a dozen or so separate revenue suggestions over a period of two months, only to see them get nowhere in a hurry, the governor apparently washed his hands of the revenue problem last week. He went fishing.

While the Republican and Democratic senate bosses met daily during the latter part of the week, Heil accompanied H. W. Mackenzie, conservation department head, to the Trout Lake forestry headquarters of the department to seek the wily muskies.

REYNOLDS PARTICIPATES

In view of Paul Reynolds' presence at the tax conferences with the senators, it is also significant that current reports have it that increased income taxes will figure in the new revenue bill.

Reynolds is employed by the Wisconsin Taxpayers Alliance, and is a conscientious and astute student of public affairs and problems. Ever since the beginning of the new administration, he has spread the idea that direct taxation is the most intelligent way to approach the administration's budget difficulty.

Interested in halting public spending, he insists that the taxes which hurt, the ones which the taxpayer is conscious of paying when he pays, will do more to aid officials to install economy in government than any other scheme.

The income tax is certainly one which hurts. Paid each year at a specified time, it is probably the most honest form of taxation yet devised, he believes. Mr. Reynolds is probably right in maintaining that if all state functions were supported by the income tax, that government would cost less. And if all government were supported by equally direct levies on the taxpayer, the taxpayers might really insist on reduction in the cost of all government.

LOSING CONTROL

Another example to illustrate how Gov. Heil is fast losing control of the 1939 legislature came to light last week in the defeat of the Northmen tax limitation bill in the assembly.

Unless the governor doesn't mean what he says when he makes speeches in public, that bill was an administration bill. He asked for a limitation of real estate taxes in his last special message to the legislature, and he has emphasized his desire to reduce such levies ever since he started campaigning for governor a year ago.

But at the last minute the executive office realized that it would be beaten if it insisted on the bill. So it was allowed to die without a fight. Incidentally, the League of Wisconsin Municipalities, which has been treated pretty roughly thus far this session, scored an important victory in that instance.

Smart Republicans know that if they could figure out a way to reduce the property tax bills of the hundreds of thousands of Wisconsin real estate property tax payers, they would have an unbeatable argument in 1940. The Heil office tried the sales tax plan, with a rebate of half or more of the proceeds to local treasuries to lighten property taxes. But tax-shy legislators vetoed it. Then direct limitation was attempted. Beaten again, the administration

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Noted Physician and Author

ODD HOUSE IS ON THE FIRE
Reader offers her contribution to Odd House. In her days as a student nurse she had to run up, a ramp from one floor to another, perhaps carrying a tray of food and never spilling a drop of coffee. Now, with four children, she wishes she had a ramp instead of the stairs in her home. She always found it difficult to keep flies out of the house, with the children running in and out and constantly admitting the problem of the man who cut a large hole in the door for the big cat, and some smaller holes for the kittens. Finally she had small screen doors fitted in the large ones, so the tots could readily pass thru without swinging the larger door open. This baffled the insects. The lady published the idea in a popular magazine years ago, but believes it might be used in Odd House.

Now that the Odd House booklet is on the fire, coming up, being whipped into shape for the printer, I begin to wonder whether the name, Odd House, will not frighten conventional people off. After all, Odd House is not going to be Maniac Mansion, so there is nothing to fear except what the neighbors may think about it.

Friends who have seen it assure me that there is an exhibit in one of the world's fairs bearing the startling name of the "House of Tomorrow." Perhaps we had better subordinate the forbidding idea of odd house and call ours the "House of Next Father's Day"—some people might be interested enough to study it just to find out when the heck Father's Day happens.

Every development or improvement we accept as a feature for Odd House is primarily for health's sake. Architecturally or esthetically, some of the innovations already adopted or to be considered may seem a bit out of line from the conventional point of view. We can help that. Odd House is the House of Happiness. Health is Happiness. If in our opinion—shucks, excuse me, I mean my opinion, of course—a ramp seems to have any advantage over stairways from the health viewpoint, I use the ramp instead of stairways. Don't be shocked when you first look at it. Remember the way you felt about certain new designs in automobile bodies when the early models appeared.

It is the health aspect that gets Odd House endorsement of the Alabama reader's baby screen door. If you can't keep all of the flies out of the house all of the time, at least it makes for health and happiness to keep some of them out some of the time.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

When one gets along in years it is wise to eat only two meals a day, and still older only one meal. If so, about what age and what time of day should the meals be taken? (Mrs. C. B. W.)

Answer—Elderly folk who are sedentary should eat less. However, I believe it better to continue taking three or four meals daily, but small meals, perhaps a glass of milk and some fruit, or tea and toast or cakes, for one or two meals. Persons past sixty may feel better with one hearty meal daily, either mid-day or evening dinner. A light snack at bedtime is healthful.

WILD LIFE IN TELULAH PARK
Editor Post-Crescent—This is in reply to the article appearing in the People's Forum column of the Post-Crescent on August 8th. Telulah Park is being improved and preserved for the enjoyment of all. Only those trees and vegetation which have been destroyed that are a hazard to both life and limb. When W.F.A. was in charge of Telulah Park under the direction of the Municipal Authorities, the only wild life we found was a few snakes and squirrels. The other wild life existed and took place after dark, the participants were not the animals or birds of the forest, but humans seeking a secluded spot and finding one within our fair city.

Previously, Telulah Park lacked a good serviceable roadway, as the roads were in such poor condition after a rain that it was impossible to cars for days afterward.

In Telulah Park, we possess some of the most beautiful trees in the city of Appleton. Nature gave us these trees for our enjoyment, but if they are not cared for, they soon become diseased and die. We found many of the trees had dried rot so bad that they were a hazard, as a strong wind would blow them over. It was evident to anyone who possessed even ordinary knowledge of wild life, that the chief and most plentiful vegetation that grew in the park was poison ivy and poison oak. It was the poison ivy and poison oak, etc., that we used fire to destroy, as surely, no one would want to preserve that. Cottonwood trees were removed and one of the reasons for this were that there is a city ordinance ordering the destruction of this type of tree within the city limits.

The old Telulah Park, with its poor road, its lack of toilet and drinking facilities, its poison ivy and oak, diseased trees and dead limbs is being improved so that it will really be a park for the enjoyment of the community. A log toilet building is being constructed, along with two stone fireplaces and four drinking fountains. A beautiful driveway has been built so that the public can now drive into the park without fear of having to have their car towed out.

Since we have been working in the park we have had hundreds of adults and children of the old Fourth ward express their appreciation of the improvements finally being made. As there are parks located in the north, west and central parts of the city, it seems only fair that the old Fourth ward should have a decent park. People living in the other parts of the city should be broadminded enough to allow the people in this ward, a park located a reasonable distance from their homes, so that it will not be necessary for them to send their children to Erb's or Pierce Park for recreation.

Opponent Was Wide Awake On This Play

BY ELY CULBERTSON
After a recent duplicate game one player was besieged with questions concerning a certain board. "How did you make seven on that hand with the king of trumps?" "Was your left hand opponent asleep at the switch?" "Exactly to the contrary," was the reply. "It was because he was wide awake, and made the only play that might defeat me, that I took all thirteen tricks."

This was the hand:
North, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.
Match-point duplicate.

♦ A K 5	♦ A 4 3	♦ 10 6 5 3	♦ A Q J
♣ A K 5	♣ A 4 3	♣ 10 6 5 3	♣ A Q J

The bidding:
North East South West
1 diamond Pass 1 spade Pass
2 diamonds Pass 4 spades Pass
4 no trump Pass 5 spades Pass
5 spades Pass 5 spades Pass

Not all the tables bid as above. In some cases the North-South teams stopped at four or five spades, and one optimistic pair actually climbed to a grand slam. The small slam, however, was bid at four tables. In three of the four cases the play produced no complications. West opened the heart king, the spade finesse was immediately taken, West won with the king, and could make no return that would disturb declarer. The diamond suit was easily established, and declarer's losing club and heart found a safe haven.

At the table under discussion West had made an unusual effort to defeat the contract. He, too, had opened the heart king, but when the trump finesse was immediately tried, he had nonchalantly, unhesitatingly played low, purposely jeopardizing his king in an effort to induce a second spade finesse. If the declarer in this case had been as glib as most declarers, West's ruse would have had magnificent success. Obviously, if declarer had been willing to assume from the "success" of the first finesse that the king was on his right, and had used dummy's remaining trump for a second finesse, East would have gobbled up the trick and cashed a heart for the defeat of the contract. It was merely West's hard luck that he was faced with a declarer who did not believe that all is gold that glitters.

Instead of feeling elated over the fact that the spade ten had held, South gave thought to the possibility that West was attempting a flimflam. Declarer reasoned that not all the North-South teams in the room would bid the slam and, therefore, he properly decided that the mere fulfillment of his contract would return a good match-point score—that an extra trick was a secondary consideration. Thus, having taken the precaution to end in his own hand with the spade ten, he cheerfully abandoned the opportunity for another finesse and used dummy's remaining trump to ruff a heart. He then returned to the club king and laid down the spade ace. Great was his surprise and satisfaction to drop the king from West. Naturally, he had not expected such luck; he had merely intended to take out trumps before establishing diamonds, so that the opponents could not use a small trump on a high diamond. With the king dropping, of course, it was all over. One more round of trumps removed East's top spot and two high diamonds, and a run of a low one established dummy's suit with the club ace as reentry.

Although the East-West pair at this table had to take an absolute bottom on the board, I heartily approve West's desperation play, the holdup with the spade king. From the bidding and the exposed dummy, West could be sure that if he took the king he never would take another trick. Hence, since he could be equally sure that conceding the slam to the opponents would not bring him many match-points, it was worth while to risk an extra trick in order to have some chance to defeat the contract.

Beauty and You

—by PATRICIA LINDSAY

As a general rule, parents hope that their children will have a better life than they have had.

A vital step toward a better life for the child is intelligent concern for his physical welfare. How he is growing and what he will grow to be.

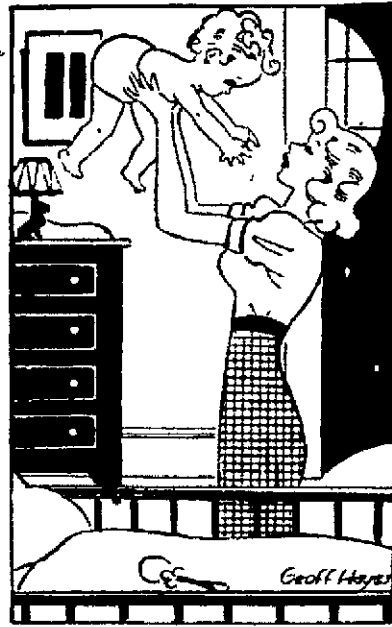

A mother should see that her child's feet are growing properly. Does he toe out? Especially constructed heels worn for a year or two under a doctor's direction often correct foot defects in a child and give him the invaluable asset of good posture, grace of carriage and strength for the rest of his life.

See Physician, If Possible
Of course, such treatment should be undergone only with the help of a doctor. But the best health investment a mother can make for her child, if she can afford it, is regular visits to the doctor throughout the child's growing years. A good physician can spot abnormalities she might not notice, and correct them before they have become too serious.

Watch Teeth
We all admire an even set of fine, white teeth. Most mothers are now educated to the necessity of taking care of a child's teeth through correct menus and periodic examinations by a reliable dentist.

If your youngster persists in sucking his thumb, ask your doctor if he is damaging the dental arch. If he is, correct the thumb sucking habit at once. Care now may help you avoid the expensive and painful process of straightening the child's teeth when he is older.

What About His Head?
Frequently babies are born with lopsided heads—a condition which usually corrects itself naturally. But a doctor can show you how to place a small baby first on one side, then on the other, sometimes on his stomach, sometimes on his back—to ensure symmetrical development of his head. If at the age of six months the baby's head is still lopsided steps should be taken. It is possible that a stiff cord in the neck, which can and should be eased, is causing the slight deformity.

Every mother should give her child the chance to grow healthy and happy.

Any conspicuous blemish such as a mole or a birth mark should be brought to a doctor's attention. If there is no danger he will suggest its removal immediately as a child's skin repairs itself easily and thoroughly with little chance of a permanent scar. Girl babies particularly should receive this attention if the blemish happens to be on the face, neck, back or arms. When she reaches maturity she will be ever grateful for the precaution you took even though the family pocketbook was severely strained.

Mothers who cannot afford the advice of a good private physician can take their tots to the nearest clinic for advice. In the majority of instances, leading physicians are interested in starting young Americans off on the right foot to health and beauty!

My leaflet "Foods for Tooth Building" is one every mother should have. Free upon request providing you enclose a self-addressed envelope bearing a three-cent stamp. Write me care of this paper.

Cold Water Will Cool Temper Of Excited, Angry Children

BY ANGELO PATRI

Children of two and thereabout, just getting about the world, are roused to anger by anything that obstructs their will. That is nothing unusual, quite the opposite. Some children resist more than others; some resist with patience, most with temper that increases with the power of the obstruction.

Holding a child when he wants to be free, as mothers must at times—bathing, dressing, tending demand it—brings on resistance. Most children will cry; some stamp and kick; some have a temper tantrum and throw things recklessly.

When the battle begins at bathing and dressing time all a mother can do is to hold on and finish the job to the end with whatever calmness she can manage. Slapping and shaking are no good. They increase the feeling of bondage that begets the child. Finish, and then set the child in his place in a quiet corner to restore his calm. Make a practice of that period of isolation and silence; it need not be a room by himself, though that sometimes helps, and the child learns to control himself.

When a temper tantrum occurs in playtime, as when a wagonful of blocks jams between the leg of the table and the sofa, take the wagon away, put the child in a quiet place and let him stay there alone, but where you can see him, until he gets over it. Make the tantrum inconvenient for him always, but as silently as possible. Silence is the most effective cure for bad temper.

Throwing things about is not permitted. The offender immediately goes into isolation quarters and stays there until he feels very lonely and begs for release. Don't melt too easily. He must stay long enough to feel really deprived of home privileges and pleasures. Then let him pick up the thing he threw and put it where it belongs without more words from you.

When a child lies down on the floor and whacks his head and then heels on it, yelling lustily the while, he is the victim of his impulsive temper, but of his will to dominate the person who stands in his way. The best cure for him is the quiet professional service the trained nurse would administer to a hysterical patient, in a like situation.

Get him to the bathroom, or the kitchen where water will do no harm. Dash copious cupfuls of cool water in his open face until he stops demonstrating. Then let him wipe his own face and go to bed to sleep off his excitement. But don't show any yourself. Don't scream or threaten. Act if you do this once—twice, if necessary—you will find that along about the third time the sound of water running in the basin will check his yells.

Spirit is one thing, but bad temper is quite another. Spirit enables a child to carry on in spite of obstacles, but ill-temper checks him in the face of difficulty. Instead of gathering his power to overcome the difficulty he goes to pieces. Such temper costs too much. Train it out.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped addressed envelope for reply.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane

Psychologist, Northwestern University

Today's discussion includes a rough test of practical intelligence. It shows how much gray matter we actually are using in contrast to what we may have inherited. A man may have a superior brain but let it rust out in idleness or childish prattle.

Case O-120. Hal W., aged 28, is working in an advertising agency. "Gee, Bill had a swell layout for our ad," he remarked to a companion, as he stepped into the elevator in the building where my office is located.

"Jeez, it was the nuts," he added for emphasis.

DIAGNOSIS: Shakespeare wisely warned us to mend our speech lest it mar our fortunes.

Even in a man such as Hal W. who is a man of letters, and whose associates give him a lower rating mentally. And when pears of age, for that is when the average person drops out of school. Thereafter, his principal and often his sole contact with cultural and educational topics is the newspaper.

What do you read in this newspaper? Are you content with the front page headlines, the sport results and the comics? If so, you are living at the intellectual level of a child in the early teens, for these are the chief features of the paper which children read.

Do you read the editorial page, the foreign news, the financial page and any of the columnists? That is where the heavier material is placed. It is too much of a strain for a child's mentality.

If you are one of the "Wanna drink" or the "Wanna smoke" herd, you don't read these Case Records, for this is distinctly an educational column.

girls employ it, we find them dropping even lower in the social scale since slang has a masculine, vulgar flavor decidedly detrimental to charming femininity.

Although we have nearly fourteen billion nerve cells, it has been estimated that we do not use but 25 per cent of our brain capacity. From the sterile language and dearth of originality on the part of our current generation, I sometimes wonder if we should even admit a 25 per cent rating!

"Wanna drink?" asked the young man when he takes his girl to a party.

"Wanna cigarette?" he later inquires.

"Wanna dance?" he concludes, and then his conversational skill has stretched itself to the breaking point.

Why Young People Drink
If it weren't for alcohol and tobacco, plus a dance orchestra, I wonder if the modern youth would be much more entertaining than the old wooden Indians in front of cigar stores.

People who don't know how to carry on a conversation feel that they must be doing something they avoid embarrassing pauses; they take their cues from tobacco or liquor advertising and blurt out "Wanna drink?" or "Wanna smoke?"

When you young people select your mates, be sure to avoid these parlor robots and mechanical men or women who lack enough originality and social training to carry on a conversation. The Sphinx has never been the emblem of happiness.

Mark of the Beast
Animals can prance around and drink when they really need fresh water, but even the beasts of the field have enough intelligence to avoid the physiological error of pouring irritating substances into their stomachs for sociability sake. Animals don't have the stomach ulcers and cancers and puking spasms of the species labelled homo sapiens!

An animal is too intelligent to jeopardize its health, but too dumb to carry on a conversation. Apparently thousands of modern Americans are dumb on both counts.

Mankind was given a superior brain for the purpose of intelligent thinking. Those who have inherited such a superior brain but complacently live at the plane of an 8-year-old youngster, are betraying their heritage.

Your newspaper is the chief educational medium in your community, at least for people past 16

Dr. Crane will give personal attention to questions on psychological grounds. Write him in care of the Appleton Post-Crescent, enclosing a 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope and a dime to cover printing and typing costs. Letters and reader's names are never published.

"ANKLETS"
Dear Mrs. Post: Are "anklets" in bad taste? I am referring to the thin gold chains that one occasionally sees peeping through silk stockings. I have such a chain, given to me by a school friend, and mother thinks nice girls do not wear such jewelry. She even thinks such a chain worn around the ankle smacks of jungle savagery. She also thinks it is in some way immoral. But I can't understand why it should be considered more savage or immoral than a necklace or a bracelet. Will you advise this answer in the paper, please? Although I can't possibly say that an ankle chain is in best taste, I think other details of fashion so much worse that an anklet is sweetly pretty by comparison. The intentionally exaggerated outline of the undressed figure under clinging-tight clothes, and the revolting ugliness of bare toes thrust through mutilated footwear, makes yesterday's display of anklets almost puerile in comparison. I must be puzzled that it is rather conspicuous and in many communities would probably cause comment—some of which might be unpleasant.

The Roundabout Invitation
Dear Mrs. Post: My husband and I have known Mr. B. for several years, but neither one of us has met Mr. B.'s wife. They are ardent bridge players and we too would rather play bridge than do most anything else. My husband has asked Mr. B. to bring his wife over some evening to play and he said he would like to. What is my duty now? Or does Mr. B. tell my husband when they would like to come after talking it over with his wife?

Bottles at the Table
Dear Mrs. Post: Is it bad manners to serve meat sauce or catsup in their bottles at the table? The sauce would be especially difficult to take out of its own container.

Answer: Catsup bottles have no place on an attractively set table. If I were you I would buy some cruets and a small tray to stand

THE HOME GARDENER
By EDWIN H. PERKINS

Too many gardeners are of the opinion that pruning is an early spring or late fall activity and is confined to rose bushes and woody shrubs. Good gardeners prune annual plants in August so as to prepare them for a big blooming season in September.

The principle of pruning as applied to annuals, and this might also include many perennials, is simple. Plants are reshaped so that small shoots then developing can find room and sunlight in which to make their maximum growth. Then, too, the branches that seem to have borne their best flowers are removed so that all the energy left in the plant can be utilized by blooms in the various formative stages.

It is also good practice to restrict the number of flowers then being formed. About one dozen stems is the maximum allowance and six for the best blooms that a single plant could produce. The implements used in pruning will be governed by the toughness of the stems being cut. Some older established perennials will require the use of pruning shears while the majority of tender annuals can be pruned by simply pinching out buds and shoots with the forefinger and thumb.

Since the buds now being produced are easily seen, it is not a difficult problem to prune to exactly the number of blooms desired from a given plant.

My Neighbor Says—

If a light colored woolen dress is scorched when pressing, coat scorched place with French chalk and set dress away for a few days. Then brush off starch and you will find scorch has disappeared.

A quick sauce for ice cream, cottage pudding or short cake is made by heating maple corn sirup and adding a half-cup of toasted nut meats to it just before serving.

Pull out old stalks in your vegetable garden as fast as crop has been picked. This will make the cleaning up of the garden later much easier.

Ice cubes or desserts are frozen faster in a mechanical refrigerator if a quarter-cup of water is poured on the freezing surface before the trays are put in place.

them them on You will find plenty of pretty and inexpensive ones in almost every glassware department.

Mrs. Post is sorry she can no longer answer personal letters. She is glad, however, to have many printed slips on a variety of subjects, to offer to her readers. Today's slip is "Table Settings." Be sure to send a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

Poor Housekeeping Should be Proper Grounds for Divorce

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Dorothy Dix—How can I get my wife to feed our two children properly? All they have for lunch is one article of food, say, soup or an egg, or possibly something warmed over from dinner of the night before. I have begged my wife to vary their diet by giving them meat and vegetables at noon and then a light supper, but she refuses to do so. Think all of their meals should be light. The result is they are undernourished. When they do not get good marks at school, she blames them for not studying more, but no child can work and do a good job on insufficient food. Even her mother has talked to her about this, but she pays no attention to her. Food is the last thing she thinks of. But before she married she said she loved to cook and loved children. Guess she must have been kidding, yet I fell for it. What a life! Our house is full of women's magazines that have recipes and pictures of food set on a table. Even the daily newspapers devote a section to food and cooking, but though Helen looks at them, she makes no move to give us decent meals.

Our dinners are awful. It seems to me that a woman who can't or won't learn to feed her family properly must have something lacking. I am getting very much upset about the whole matter, especially about my poor little half-starved children, and feel I will have to do something very soon. Can you make any suggestion?

will, you ought to be indicted for murder."

Answer: The law grants a woman a divorce from a husband who does not support her. I have always contended that what is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander, and that a man should be entitled to a divorce from a wife who is a poor housekeeper. Because in these days, when cooking is taught in the public schools, when every college has a domestic science course, when every newspaper carries its column of simple and tried recipes, and when cookbooks are given away, any woman who can read can learn all about food values and balanced menus and how to feed her family if she wants to.

In its higher aspects cooking is one of the fine arts, and it takes a touch of genius to enable one to become a famous chef. But not many of us have either the money or the digestion to live on fancy dishes. We are on a corned-beef-and-cabbage basis, rather than on the night-tinge tongue one. What we want for our daily need is plenty of good, substantial, well-cooked meat and vegetables, the kind of food that sticks to our ribs and gives us the strength and energy to carry on and do our work in the world. Any man who brings home the bacon has the right to expect his wife to fry it properly, and if she is too lazy and trifling to do so, she deserves to get triced from her job.

Evidently your wife is too stupid or too selfish to realize that when a woman is at the head of a household the welfare of her husband and children is in her hands, and whether they prosper or not depends on how she feeds them. For a family moves on its tummy, as Napoleon said that an army did, and if they are starved by being given insufficient food or poisoned by bad cooking, they will either die or be failures because they will not have the strength to fight the battle of life.

I know personally another case like yours in which a mother was too much taken up with "the finer things of life" to pay any attention to her housekeeping and habitually sat her family down to meals that were either assembled from a delicatessen store or were greasy, soggy messes that she had hastily slapped together. Naturally the husband was anemic and nervous and the undernourished children the prey of colds and contagions, for they were in no condition to resist infection that came along. Finally the family doctor, a blunt-spoken old man, said to her: "I am throwing up this case. I will attend your children no more because what they need is good food and not medicine. They need a mother who is on her job instead of a doctor. Nobody can cure them and keep them well when they are half-starved. And when they die, as they probably

Nothing, except to play for time in the hope that his infatuation will wear itself out. After all when a man is 27 he is his own master and he can do as he pleases with himself, or keep him from making a mistake that will wreck his life.

There is no prospect of happiness in such a marriage for either the man or the girl. He will always be ashamed of her. He will loathe her people and her friends and be hurt and bitter because his own family and friends will not take her part. Their circle and she will be furious because she knows that he and his crowd will always look down on her. And she will take her resentment out on him in a thousand little ways that will hurt. He will be far happier if he marries a girl of his own class, with his own traditions and background, and so will she if she sticks to her own kind.

DOROTHY DIX.

FOUR BLIND DATES
By Edwin Rutt

YESTERDAY: Just as Tacks is telling Packy how much he loves her, the Chisler's pants descend on his head. This creates an awkward situation for a moment. But Packy finally says, "Yes."

Chapter 35
Return of the Native
THOUGH mythology does not belabor the point, it is conceivable that at the moment when the returning Ulysses crossed his threshold to find a bevy of lounge lizards making time with the fair Penelope, a vast silence settled over the palace. Conversation, indubitably, stopped abruptly; wisecrack died on shocked lips; lutes were muted. For it is moments like these that breed silence. And such a moment occurred when Mr. Richard Craftonbury Adams, followed by Matherton in a great state of trepidation, appeared like a form of harried avenging angel in the doorway of his own living room.

For two awful moments Richard Craftonbury Adams glowered at the assemblage. Then he folded his arms and spoke.

"What the devil's going on here?" quoth Richard Craftonbury.

No one seemed prepared to reply to this simple inquiry. Richard Craftonbury tried exhortatory measures.

"Well, speak up, damn it," he said. "Speak up, somebody!" As he said it, he peered at the group and discovered two individuals with whom he had a nodding acquaintance. They were Van Harkness and Junbo Cutler. He picked on Van. "Ha! You Harkness! What does this mean?"

"Er—agh—" began Van and stopped, finding himself superseded by someone possessed of a better gift of language.

It was, surprisingly enough, Miss Dorothy South. For some seconds

Miss South had been studying Richard Craftonbury. Now she had him categorized. He seemed to her the incarnation of a breed with which she had had a word of experience, namely, the tired business man. He looked like a harassed sugar daddy. And, such being the case, she held him in no awe whatsoever. She addressed him as "daddy."

"Hello, Pops," she said. "Come on in. The water's fine." Richard Craftonbury jumped. "Eh?" he ejaculated. "I said oil up the joints and let's you and me touch off a rhumba. You look as if you could bend a wicked ankle, Pops."

Richard Craftonbury smirked slightly. Back in the golden nineties he had bent ankles with the best of them. But in his day gentlemen had not danced with young ladies to whom they were not yet introduced. He sought introduction in a direct and tycoonish manner.

"Who the devil are you?" he demanded. "Now, Pops," said Miss South soothingly, "keep your shirt on. Excitement's bad for your blood pressure. But, just for your information, I'm the Head Mistress of the School for Backward Girls. T-t-t! That'll learn you to swear to a lady."

Richard Craftonbury regarded her with interest. He liked this young woman. She had spirit.

Summertime Salads
Luscious, ripe fruit, firm, fresh vegetables, and crisp tempting greens, plus a variety of flavorful salad dressings, make salads a sheer delight to eat on a summer day. Many a "heat weary" appetite is tempted to enjoyment of a meal by a salad that is a real food picture and which tastes as good as it looks.

The secret of success with salads lies in variety. They must be crisp cool salads, fresh bright colored salads, salads with a tang and piquancy of flavor that peeps up the palate. The salads I submit are favorites with almost everyone, children as well as grown-ups. They are delightful, the type we are proud to serve at afternoon or evening parties or when there are guests for summer suppers.

Utility Forced to Sell Out to TVA, Official Declares

'Subsidized Government Competition' Too Much, Wilkie Says

New York — (AP) — Wendell L. Wilkie, president of the Commonwealth and Southern corp., asserted today his company had been "forced" to sell the Tennessee Electric Power co., "because we could not stay in business against this subsidized government competition."

His assertion was embodied in a statement issued as the federal-owned Tennessee Valley Authority and various municipalities and cooperative power companies of Tennessee paid Wilkie's company $78,425,095.01 for the Tennessee Electric company which Commonwealth and Southern owns 99 per cent of the common stock.

Wilkie declared the government was acquiring the electric property "at about 80 per cent of its real value."

"I sincerely hope," he said, "that our former customers in the state of Tennessee will continue to enjoy the benefits which the Tennessee Electric Power company originally made possible."

"Whether or not the quality of service is maintained, these customers will, of course, enjoy the lower rates made possible by government subsidy—but they and all the people in the United States will pay the higher taxes which tax-exempt and heavily-subsidized government operations inevitably require."

Government As a Competitor "This transaction has demonstrated that no business, however well run, can endure against the competition of the federal government with its vast financial resources."

The greatest transfer of a going privately-owned electric power property to government ownership in the history of the United States took place in a big bare white room occupying half a floor in the Wall street skyscraper of the First National bank.

In the main, the plan of operation calls for ownership and operation of generating facilities and high-tension, cross-country power lines by TVA. This system will bring power to the cities, where TVA will sell it to municipal power boards. These boards will operate publicly-owned distribution systems within the cities which will carry the power to the manufacturer and household, send out monthly bills and make collections.

Wilson School Property Is Large Enough for Swim Pool

(This is the third of several articles discussing the sites that have been suggested for a municipal swimming pool. If one ever is built in Appleton, No attempt will be made to compare one with another or to suggest that one might be better than another. Information concerning assessments, sewer connections, etc., has been obtained from official sources. The purpose of these articles is to acquaint readers with the possible places that pools might be built, with such facts on property assessments, location, nearby properties, distances, sewer connections, etc., as will enable them to form conclusions as to the more desirable places.)

Another city-owned property that has been suggested as a site for an artificial swimming pool in Appleton is the Wilson Junior High school property. A pool, large enough for Appleton, could be built in the area bounded on the east by Badger avenue and on the west by Mason street or it might be built directly west of the school building on the Mason and Washington street corner. The picture accompanying on this page shows the northern site and the map indicates how the pool could lie in relation to the streets.

The Wilson school property is 4,550 feet, about nine-tenths of a mile in a straight line from the Conway hotel, the geographical center of Appleton. The property covers an area of 14 1/2 acres, part of which is covered by the school building. However, the property line on Mason street is 1,000 feet, and on Washington street nearly 1,000 feet, which would leave an area more than adequate for a large swimming pool.

Residences on Mason street would be not more than 100 to 150 feet from the pool, if it were built on the property. Several business and industrial buildings abut the property on the south. That section of the city is beginning to grow and several houses are now being erected on Badger avenue directly across from the school.

The property lies on the tableland and is open to the sun and wind. No trees of any size are on the site. The "natural" atmosphere for a swimming place would be lacking.

Adequate sewerage is available on all the abutting streets, a 30-inch sewer on Mason street, an 8-inch sewer on Badger avenue and a 10-inch sewer on Washington street. The property is about three-quarters of a mile from the Fox river, which would entail an initial and maintenance expense if the water were pumped from the river and purified and filtered at the pool.

Streets abutting and leading to the property could be used for parking a large number of automobiles.

2 Held in Burglary Claim They Escaped From School for Boys

Two 16-year-old Racine youths who yesterday were reported to have confessed burglarizing the Herman Kloes Service station on Highway 10 north of Appleton, say they escaped from the St. Charles School for Boys at Milwaukee last Thursday. Sheriff John Lappen said today.

Lappen arrested the youths early yesterday morning after Kloes reported two youths near his service station. A pocket-book containing $16 was taken, and the money was recovered.

Mercury on Climb In City, Vicinity Reaches 87 Degrees Early This Afternoon; Fair Tomorrow

The mercury was bubbling merrily upward today under the force of a hot sun and the weatherman, perspiring himself, said that people of Appleton and vicinity and the state in general can expect more of it tomorrow—which would make it four warm days in a row.

For the 24-hour period ended at 9 o'clock this morning the highest mark in the city was 87, recorded at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and the lowest 69, according to Wisconsin Michigan Power company charts.

Only in the northeastern part of the state is a change in temperature expected. Cooler weather predicted for that area.

45-Day Season for Ducks Is Announced by Ickes; Opening Date in Wisconsin Is Oct. 1

Washington — (AP) — Secretary Ickes announced today there would be a 45-day season for duck hunting this fall under regulations covering the 1939 migratory bird season.

The new rules, approved by President Roosevelt in accordance with the federal migratory bird treaty with Canada and Mexico, listed two outstanding changes for waterfowl hunting.

The season in the intermediate zone, being the mid-section of the country from California to New Jersey, Ickes said, will open on Oct. 22 instead of on Oct. 15, and the daily bag limit on geese will be reduced from five to four.

While dates for the northern and southern zones were unchanged from last year, the opening intermediate date was delayed, Ickes said, at the request of a majority of state conservation departments which argued the season last year opened too early to afford reasonable hunting privileges.

Reduce Bag Limit Reduction in the bag limit on geese, he said, was made on recommendation of the biological survey, which reported that geese did not appear to be in quite as satisfactory condition last winter as in the preceding season.

Hunting seasons by northern and intermediate zones for ducks, geese, Wilson's snipes or jacksnipes, and coots follow in order: Oct. 1 to Nov. 14 — Maine, Michigan, Minnesota, New Hampshire, North Dakota, Vermont and Wisconsin.

Oct. 22 to Dec. 5 — California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Utah, Washington, West Virginia and Wyoming.

The regulations on waterfowl hunting place the daily bag limit for ducks at 10 in the aggregate but the possession limit remains at 20 in the aggregate. When any daily limit includes canvas-back, redhead, bufflehead and ruddy ducks, not more than three of any one, or more than three in the aggregate, of these kinds may be taken, and possession of these particular kinds of ducks is limited to not more than six of any one kind or six in the aggregate.

The daily bag limit on geese and brant of the kinds permitted to be killed is four in the aggregate of all kinds and the possession limit is eight in the aggregate. Last year, the limits stood at five and 10, respectively.

No more than two days' bag limit of lawfully-taken and lawfully-possessed ducks and geese may be transported in any one calendar week out of the state in which taken.

The daily bag limit on coots remains at 25. Hunt from 7 A. M. to 4 P. M. Waterfowl and coots may be hunted only from 7 a. m. to 4 p. m. The regulations forbid taking waterfowl by means of bait or use of live duck and goose decoys and continues the three-shell limit on repeating shotguns, either hand-operated or auto-loading. Hunters may use shotguns not larger than No. 10 gauge, including pump and bow. The latter weapon, Ickes said, was added because of interest that has developed in recent years in archery.

These other regulations were announced: Snipes, rails, gallinules (other than coots), woodcocks, mourning doves, white-winged doves, and band-tailed pigeons, also protected under the migratory bird treaty act, may be hunted in season from 7 a. m. to sunset.

The daily bag limit for rails and gallinules, other than soras and coots, is continued at 15 in the aggregate. Other bag limits are: Soras, 15; coots, 25; Wilson's snipes, or jacksnipes, 15; woodcocks, 4; mourning and white-winger doves, 15 in the aggregate of both kinds; and band-tailed pigeons, 10.

Possession limits for these species at any one time may not exceed the daily bag limit, except that in the case of woodcocks the possession limit has been raised to eight.

Arthur Wyro and his son, Eugene, Kaukauna, have returned home from St. Elizabeth hospital, where both had undergone operations.

It Is Said--

That corridors of the courthouse took on an unusual appearance with most of the office doors closed this morning. Feminine employees of the county were responsible for the closed doors, and a full-grown bat was the reason for their action. The bat darted about the corridors for several hours despite the efforts of Undersheriff Fred Frank, armed with a broom, to kill it. The bat finally disappeared into some dark corner, leaving the girls with a worry for the remainder of the day.

Rudy Lotz Sails Sunflower to Victory in National Class

Neenah — Boats in the small classes tied for first place in a close finish of the Neenah-Nodaway Yacht club races Sunday afternoon. Only one and a half minutes elapsed between the time Rudy Lotz sailed his national class Sunflower across the line and Jimmy Hooper sailed Misty, an open class boat, into fifth place.

Lotz won the national class race. He was followed across the line 28 seconds later by Mary Shattuck, sailing the X class boat We Too. Bob Kimberly came in second in X class just 10 seconds later in Sand Piper. Gerry Felton was second in the national class with Don't Eek. Crossing the line two seconds behind Bob Kimberly, Hooper was fifth over the line and first in the X class.

The scheduled race for Saturday was called off because the steady rain in the early afternoon followed by calm but a steady southeast wind aided the sailing Sunday. While five A class boats started and made one round of the triangle, no formal race in that class was sailed.

In the national class the three were Sunflower with Rudy Lotz as skipper, Gerry Felton with Don't Eek and Star Dust, sailed by Charles Zemlock.

Neenah Shows $1,000 Gain Over 1938 in Second Quarter

Williams Warns Business to Meet Desires of Public

ERA President Speaks at National Congress in Detroit

(Special to the Post-Crescent)

Detroit, Mich. — Speaking at the presidents' section of the national fraternal congress in session at the Statler hotel today, Norton J. Williams, supreme president of the Fraternal Reserve association of Neenah, warned business of the necessity of consideration of the public's desires in order to meet success.

Mr. Williams, who is one of six Neenah men attending the congress, spoke on "A Public Relations Program for Fraternal Life Insurance." He said, "In these days of modern changing times, keen competition and an enlightened public, business must take into consideration the desires of the public if it is going to meet with the greatest success. The public has certain definite ideas about what it wants and those wants must be satisfied."

"If a life insurance organization should decide today that it would offer only an ordinary life policy to the public, the sales would be restricted. Today many people think about providing an income for themselves in the later years of their lives as well as providing protection for their dependents."

"Because of this desire on the part of the public to build a program for the future that will provide for dependents and themselves in the later years of their lives, it is necessary to have policies to satisfy that demand."

Wants to Serve

"Public relations is one of the newer business principles which is helping to convey to the public the fact that business is looking for an opportunity to serve. In simple terms, it is a plan to inform the public of the desire to serve and to satisfy wants and needs."

"If any business is going to grow and prosper, the men and women responsible for the growth and success of the business must continue to adopt new and modern methods. Any business that tries to operate today as it did 30 or 40 years ago will soon find decay setting in that will cause stagnation and loss of influence."

The public does not know that our fraternal life insurance societies came through the depression without a failure and that every obligation was paid in full. The public does not know that our societies have paid out approximately five and one-half billion dollars since we were organized, neither does it know that in 1938 the benefits paid amounted to nearly 120 million dollars.

"The public does not know the amount of disability claims, the manna benefits or the amount of money paid the members as policy loans or cash surrender values. The public does not know how much of our total payments went to beneficiaries or how much of it went back to the members."

Three Billions Paid

"The public talks about the one and one-half billion dollars spent by the federal government in one year for relief, but they do not know that during the same year the life insurance companies paid three billion dollars to policyholders and their beneficiaries."

"The public knows that during the depths of the depression the United States government loaned 80 million dollars to the insurance companies of this country, but they do not know that during the same period the life insurance companies loaned 350 million dollars to the federal government through the purchase of government securities."

"America is great because there has always been individual opportunity. Fraternal life insurance is great because it also has given Americans the opportunity to go out and do things. The American public likes to gather in lodge rooms and meet new friends while they also are renewing acquaintance with old friends."

"The campaign is under way to win Americans so that they will realize the value of fraternal life insurance and acknowledge the benefits of the many charitable, benevolent and philanthropic projects that are sponsored and supported by our societies."

20 Youngsters From Chicago Nursery Enjoy Stay at Neenah

Neenah — The happiest place in the Twin Cities this week is at the Overly homestead on Congress street where 20 children from the Bethesda Day nursery in Chicago are being entertained at the second week of a summer camp under the direction of Miss Ellen Deal, daughter of Mrs. A. W. Jape, 212 Caroline street. Miss Deal is in charge of the nursery.

Health Improved

Two years ago, Miss Deal brought a group from the nursery to Neenah for a 2-week outing. Those children whose parents or parent are working to carry the financial burden of a home, benefitted so much by their two weeks in Neenah that not one suffered with a cold during last winter.

In the letters to their mothers or fathers or both parents this week the children gave greatest importance to the food that they have to eat, to the grass and yard where they play and to the cows and birds and horses that they see.

A Sunday school class of girls from First Presbyterian church brought foodstuffs to the children Monday afternoon and stayed to play and talk with the children.

Miss Deal hopes to keep the children at the Neenah home which she owns, another week if donations are received to finance the project. The nursery children had been invited to use the First Congregational church camp in Michigan during an open camp period but the church group closed the camp suddenly when it was found that lack of adult registrations for the open camp session would not make opening possible.

GRIN AND BEAR IT

By Libby

"I don't believe the way to a man's heart is his stomach. I make my boy-friends take me to the best restaurants, but they don't propose."

As Ernie Pyle Sees America

Flagstaff, Ariz.—That bus accident near Flagstaff had another odd sequel for us.

We read in the paper that one of the injured persons was Miss Sylvia Berg of Juneau, Alaska.

Two years ago in Alaska, way out at Good News Bay on the Bering Sea, I knew a Berg family. I stayed with them a couple of days.

They had a very pretty daughter named Frances, and Frances had a sister who had been chosen Miss Alaska the year before. She wasn't home, so I never got to see her.

Now for all I knew, this Miss Sylvia Berg in the Flagstaff hospital might be Frances' beautiful sister. My duty was plain. A man has no right to detour around such possibilities as this.

So that girl and I talked it over, and I said to her, "Now if you were way up in Alaska and got hurt and didn't know anybody, wouldn't you enjoy seeing someone that knew somebody you knew, even indirectly?"

She said, "No."

But we went up to the hospital anyway. And it wasn't Frances' sister at all.

Talked fast to cover embarrassing situation.

However, Miss Sylvia Berg turned out to be a very nice-looking girl in her own right. She looked nice despite a broken nose and a black eye and a big gash on her forehead.

She was middling bewildered at a couple of strange people walking into her room and starting to rattle. We were kind of flustered ourselves at it not being a member of the Berg family I knew. And so we talked fast and kind of silly. I guess, to cover up our embarrassment.

But after a little while Miss Berg and we got it straightened out that we didn't mean other any harm and we hit on a few people we both knew in Juneau, such as Clarence Wise and Alex Holden and Alec Dunham, and then everything was all right and I think she was glad we came to see her, even if it was somebody else.

She and her mother and little sister had come out for a few weeks trip this summer, and were headed for Grand Canyon when the accident happened. Two others were bruised up also, but had gone to a hotel after the doctor had looked them over.

After we left the hospital we were afraid we had upset Miss Berg by barging in with this weird story of, "do you know somebody you know?" like a traveling salesman, so we decided to make amends by getting her a little present.

We thought we'd leave it at the hotel downtown, in care of her mother. So we went to one hotel.

and asked if Mrs. Berg and her daughter were staying there.

The clerk said, "Mrs. Berg? Mrs. Berg? No, I don't think so." And then he looked at his file and said, "Were they in the bus accident?"

and we said yes, and then he looked rather official and said, "No, they're not here. Those people usually have reservations."

And I said, "You mean those people who are going to have bus accidents 12 miles west of Flagstaff at 7 o'clock on Tuesday mornings usually have reservations?"

Pyle and Clerk Look At Each Other Sternly.

The man and I looked at each other sternly for a long time, and neither of us said anything more, and after awhile I turned around and walked out.

P. S.—We found the Bergs in another hotel, and left the present. They hadn't made previous reservations there either. I suppose the place just took pity on them.

I think the hotel guy must have been thinking about something else, for we have really found Flagstaff one of the most accommodating and friendly towns we've ever been in.

For example, the thermos jug. After our desert trip, I had to send a gallon thermos jug back to the friend in Albuquerque from whom we had borrowed it. But the express company wouldn't accept it unless it was boxed up.

Now, among the many things which I do not have the facilities for handling at a moment's notice is the boxing up of a thermos jug. So we took it to the big department store—Babbitt's is the name—and asked them to wrap it up for us.

They did so, very snugly and beautifully, and at considerable time and work. And then, when I went to pay them, they wouldn't take a cent. No sir, not a penny.

And so they did the wrapping. They said they'd been wrapping up stuff for Flagstaff people for so long they finally decided it was just part of their life's work, like getting up in the morning. Local people even bring in their Christmas packages for Babbitt's to wrap up for nothing. Nice, eh?

Another example: I had to buy some special thin typewriter paper. The man in the store said it was eight sheets for a nickel. So we took 100 sheets.

When he got through he figured a long time, and said it was $1.25. So I did some quick figuring in my head, and I got 63 cents. "O.K.," said the man, right off. "63 cents it is." Just took my word for it.

It scared me so bad I got out my pencil and figured it up two or three different ways, to make sure I wasn't cheating him. It still came out 63 cents, though.

By Jimmie Fidler

Aboard the S. S. Matsonia Enroute Honolulu—Dear Staff: A nice lady on Deck B asked me today: "Is Edgar Bergen lots of fun at parties?" She just knew he must be, with that clever Charlie McCarthy.

I told her that Edgar is just like any other fellow at a party—and he never takes Charlie along! Bergen doesn't talk much without McCarthy in fact, he freezes among strangers. Even among intimates, he's sparing with his bon mots. Maybe it's because he can't think of them on the spur of the moment. Or perhaps when he does think up a real smart one, he prefers to save it for commercial use.

As I said to the nice lady, Bergen never takes McCarthy to parties any more. After two years in Hollywood, he is finally wise to hostesses who gush, "Come to dinner—and don't forget to bring that darling Charlie McCarthy." Edgar knows that such invitations mean he's supposed to lug the dummy along and deliver a thousand dollar show for free. So when a hostess adds "bring Charlie" to an invite-Bergen stays home.

Hollywood's always been like that. Remember the woman who cancelled a dinner party because, after inviting Bing Crosby she learned Bing had a sore throat? And I know another woman who won't speak to Grace Moore because Grace wouldn't give out with aristocrats at a party, and the party was in a well filled night club, too!

Oh well, speaking of singing and music, if Clark Gable could play by ear, what a musician that man would be!

JIMMIE FIDLER

Dear Jimmie: A belated aloha to you from Jane Withers. Incidentally that young lady has been assigned an animal pal in her new picture, "Highschool," that she won't want to add to her collection of pets. It's a gopher snake. Not that Jane minds snakes in general. She objects to this one in particular. Seems someone was indiscreet enough to tell her that it diets on mice and Jane, if you recall, thinks her white mice are mighty nice.

Your secretary spent her lunch hour yesterday with a fortune teller and came back with the news that she had to wait until the seer had finished reading Hedy Lamarr's future. Naturally she asked questions, and discovered that the languorous Lamarr is an addict who never makes an important decision without first peering into the crystal ball.

Here's today's crop of "what goes on" items: Gloria Stuart postcards that she will get back from that round-the-world jaunt on September first—no jobs in sight and glad of it, for she needs a long rest to recover from her vacation.

Cary Grant flatly denies current reports in the local papers that he and Phyllis Brooks are to take the matrimonial plunge immediately—says they will be married, in Hollywood, sometime in November (if at all) . . . Be on the lookout for Lana Turner and her mama over yonder in Hula-land—they're sailing as soon as she finishes work in "Dancing Co-ed" and that means this week . . . Despite those rave notices given Bert Lahr for his work in "The Wizard of Oz," he's refusing all picture bids for a year, which he will spend on the New York stage . . . That "baby-bob" hair stylist, Sid Guillard, will adopt his second baby next month from a Los Angeles orphanage . . . Dick Powell, who's still fishing.

JANE WYMAN—charming young screen sophisticate who will be featured next in Warner's "Kid Nightingale." wears a smartly casual powder blue sharkskin suit for summer dining.

Edison Girl Scout Troop Makes Bike Trip for Day Camp

With no more serious mishap than an occasional bump and the forgetting of the buns, Edison school Girl Scout troop, No. 5, took a bike hike to Kaukauna park Monday for its day camp. On arriving at the park after the 8-mile trip, food was uppermost in the minds of the girls, so they set about gathering wood for the fire over which they fried hamburgers.

Ball games and a nature scavenger hunt entertained the scouts in the morning, winners of the hunt being Audrey Schmid and Shirley Radtke. Following lunch and a rest-hour, the girls paired off in twos and gave stunts around the campfire.

"Over Papa's Dead Body" was the play given by Barbara Carlson and Ann Hauert, a pantomime, "The Clock in the Steeple" was presented by Joyce Jacobson and Jean Gallaher, and choruses of songs and book titles were put on by Audrey Schmid and Shirley Radtke. Camp capers were interpreted by Carol Busch and Alice Ann Hammer. After camp cleanup the bikes were headed back toward Appleton. Twelve girls made the trip accompanied by Miss Elaine Buesing.

Today Troop 20 of St. Joseph's school is at Sunset Point with Mrs. Lloyd Jack, leader, for a day camp. Two groups will have outings Wednesday. Troop 7 of Columbus school at Potato Point with Mrs. Joseph Foley and Miss Jane Frank in charge, and Troop 26 of St. Mary school at High Cliff with Mrs. Robert Roemer and Miss Buesing accompanying the group.

Sunset Point will be the destination of girls of Edison troop 23 on Friday. Miss Buesing and Miss Frank will be chaperons.

French Allows St. Louis Cards 4 Hits, Wins 4-0

Stops Gas House Gang's March to National League Flag

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Left handed Larry French abruptly halted at least temporarily—the St. Louis Cardinals' upward march toward the league leading Cincinnati Reds yesterday, holding them to four hits as the Chicago Cubs won the first of a 2-game series, 4 to 0.

Stan Hack's two bagger in the fourth drove in two runs and Bill Nicholson's home run in the fifth accounted for another. The first run, in the third, came on Joe Medwick's error. The St. Louis left fielder let Billy Herman's single roll through his legs and Hack, who had gone from first to third on the blow, reached home.

French's excellent mound performance might not have been achieved had a first inning spike wound proved more serious. The pitcher suffered first on Stuart Martin's infield blow flied by Glen Russell, who was spared by the base, and was spiked wide by the play. French took time out for repairs, then continued.

Two of the Cardinal's four singles came in the fourth but no runner got past second in this or any other inning. After Martin's safety in the fifth, French pitched no-hit ball the rest of the way.

Bowling Alley Owner Cleans Up $10,000 in Record Daily Double

Chicago —(T)— Claude E. Elkins of Anna, Ill., had a handsome reward today for believing in his own ability to pick winning horses by remote control.

The 40-year old bowling alley operator selected two long shots at Washington park yesterday, placed a $2 wager on them by wire as his daily double choice.

His winning choice in the first race was Joy Bet an aptly-named but obscure entrant which paid $131.40 to win, $244.00 to place and $31.80 to show. The second race winner, Merry Caroline, paid $20.00, $9.00 and $5.00.

Elkins, who said he picked Joy Bet and Merry Caroline because he had been watching their workouts recently, told reporters he would put his prize money in the bank.

Salvation Army 22, Methodist 15.

WEEK'S GAMES
Tuesday—Evangelical vs. St. Mary.
Wednesday—St. Mary vs. Methodist.
Thursday—St. Therese vs. Congregational.

THE Salvation Army celebrated its entrance into the win column of the Church league last night by collecting 23 hits and 22 runs and beating the Methodists 22-15.

In all fairness, it must be reported that the Methodist team had to start the game with only six players and trailed 7-1 at the end of the opening inning.

The game introduced a new note in Church league competition when the Methodist squad played a woman for the entire game. M. Moser held down the second base slot. She went hitless, but got two walks and scored three runs. St. Mary's one-run used Miss Melcher for an inning.

T. Schaefer of the Methodist club clouted two home runs last night and O. Kloes of the Salvation Army one.

The box score follows:

Methodist	Salvation Army
AB R H	AB R H
Van Ryzin	6 1 1
Schaefer	6 3 1

Parmelee in Second Shutout as Colonels Beat St. Paul by 3-0

By the Associated Press
American Association batters are no puzzle to Leroy Parmelee even if he couldn't find anybody in the American league earlier this season.

Parmelee, who started with the New York Giants several years ago, and started this season with the A's, tossed a one-hitter for Louisville a few days ago. Last night just to prove it wasn't luck he set St. Paul down with four hits to ring up his second straight shutout, 3 to 0.

No other games were scheduled last night.

The other three western clubs—league-leading Kansas City, second-place Minneapolis and Milwaukee—begin their final swing around the eastern half of the circuit tonight.

Stuhldreher Asks 48 Badgers To Report for 1st Grid Drill

MADISON—(AP)—A squad of 48 players will be asked to report for opening football practice here Sept. 11, Coach Harry Stuhldreher, of the University of Wisconsin, announced today.

"Wisconsin will start the season with a variety squad of 48 players, which will probably be the smallest, in point of numbers, in the conference," the Badger coach said. "We must replace seven starting regulars from last year's team, so we seem to have a job cut out for us. However, we'll put a team on the field for every game and I think Wisconsin will play interesting football."

Bill Schmitz, halfback; Jack Murray, center; Bob Eckl, tackle, and Ralph Moeller, end, are the regulars from last year's eleven. However, 12 other letter winners and two 1937 starters will bolster the squad. Bob Grinde, a 220 pound tackle, and Jim Riordan, an end, are the 1937 holdovers.

The team should be better than last year at tackle and end and at center about as strong. The backfield, what with the loss of Howie Weiss, fullback; Roy Bellin, halfback, and Vince Gavey, quarterback, appears to be weaker.

The Badgers open the season against Marquette on Sept. 31 and follow with games against Texas, Indiana, Northwestern, Iowa, Illinois, Purdue and Minnesota. The Northwestern, Illinois and Minnesota games will be played away from home. The Badgers will have an open date Nov. 4, after the Iowa game.

The roster follows:
Ends—Gordon Gile, Shorewood; Raymond Kreick, Milwaukee; Ralph Moeller, Watertown; Clifford Philip, Libertyville, Ill.; Albert Lorenz, Oak Park, Ill.; John Loehrke, Mayville; Edmund Wagner, Cudahy; David Jones, Binghamton, N. Y.; and James Riordan, Rhinelander.

Tackles—Robert Eckl, Milwaukee; Eric Fagerstrom, Madison; Rex John, Manitowish; Robert Grinde, DeForest; Albert Dorsch, Wauwatosa; Elmer Tornow, Berton County, both of Green Bay; and Howard Kaerwer, Oshkosh.

Guards—Robert Holloway, Chicago; Donald Kolbusz, Green Bay; Nicholas Jacques, Port Washington; John Meloy, Madison; Richard Embick, Laurel, Neb.; Ralph Clapp, Oak Park, Ill.; Harry Knickelbine, Milwaukee, and Orville Fox, Milwaukee.

State Baseball Meet Hits Quarter-Finals; Scoring Mark Is Set

Milwaukee (AP)—The quarter-final round began today in the annual state amateur baseball tournament.

Reedsburg ran up the largest score of the tournament in winning a second-round game from Plainfield yesterday, 21 to 4. The winners made 17 base hits, stole nine bases and were helped along by 10 Plainfield errors.

Home runs by Woody De Jardin and Shaw helped Bailey's Harbor to a 7 to 6 victory over the Milwaukee Greenbaums. De Jardin's blow came with the bases full. Shaw's followed in the same inning.

Brownsville pushed over two runs in the seventh to defeat the South Milwaukee Silverdals, 7 to 6, after the Silverdals had overcome a four-run lead.

The Negro Club Congo nine of Milwaukee blanked the West Allis Scheffs, 9 to 0, as Howard Papke gave up only two hits.

Philadelphia—Billy Conn, 1784, Philadelphia, stopped Gus Dorazio, 1861, Philadelphia, (8).

CHAMPION FALLS—BUT LATER WINS

Blonde Alice Marble got an eager helping hand from an official after she sprawled to the turf during the finals of the eastern grass courts championship at Bryn Mawr, Pa. The upset didn't bother Alice, however, for she defeated Mrs. Sara Falfrey Fabyan, of Brookline, Mass., 6-4, 6-4, to take the title for the second consecutive year.

360 Miles an Hour Is Goal of Cobb, High-Speed Englishman

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—"The first 300 miles," says fur and speed merchant John Cobb, "are the hardest."

Cobb spends his vacations from his London business traveling at tremendous velocities over charted race courses, seeking new world records. He set one last year, 360 miles an hour, only to have it eclipsed by Capt. George Eyston's 357.7 the next day. He's back for another run on Utah's salt flats next week. His goal is 360 miles an hour.

It's getting past the 300-mile mark that furnishes the most difficulty, the 200-pounder said in an interview. "When you get over 300 miles an hour time is stressed to the limit. Landmarks are just a blur and you have no time to make an appraisal of your physical or mental reactions."

"There is so much noise from the two motors, making 30,000 revolutions a minute, and the accompanying vibration, that it drowns out all thought or feeling."

Cobb sees no particular danger in driving at such speeds. He says the gyroscopic force makes it almost impossible to swerve from a straight line. He hopes he never learns first hand, but thinks it entirely possible that centrifugal force will keep his tires extended even though they blow out under the strain.

Billy Conn Hands Dorazio a Lacing In Eight Rounds

PHILADELPHIA—(AP)—Billy Conn's first rap at the door of heavyweight fame got him into the hallway today with an eight round technical knockout of Gus Dorazio notched on his belt.

It's still a long way to the throne room, but the 21-year old Irish scrapper from Pittsburgh has at least a reason to believe he'll meet Joe Louis there a couple of years hence.

Dorazio didn't think so, though, after "Billy the Kid" pounded him into submission before 12,000 fans at flood-lit Shibe park last night. "He didn't hurt me," said the bleeding loser in his dressing room. "Give me a return match and I'll beat him."

That was just luxurious optimism, however. Conn hung up the light heavyweight crown he won just a month ago, barged into the heavyweight division with a 13-pound weight disadvantage and laced Dorazio good and proper.

Referee Leo Houck stopped the scheduled 10-rounder after 1.52 of the eighth round with blood streaming from a cut over Dorazio's left eye.

Dorazio simply was no match for the high-footer Pittsburgher who piled up a big lead on points before the end. The Associated Press score card gave Conn six rounds, Dorazio one and called one even. The crowd of 12,000 paid a gross of around $21,000. Conn will defend in Pittsburgh the light heavyweight title against Melio Bettina, from whom he snatched it July 13.

Bears Sign 312-Pound Tackle, Jack Torrance

Chicago—(AP)—Jack Torrance, world's shot put record holder and former Louisiana State tackle, signed a contract yesterday with the Chicago Bears of the National Professional Football league.

Torrance is 25 years old and weighs 312 pounds, about 40 pounds over his best playing weight in college.

Coach George Halas also announced Ray Bulvid, one-time Marquette star and Bear halfback the past two years, had decided not to play pro football this season.

Chicago—Tony Zale, 163, Gary, Ind., knocked out Milton Shivers, 159, Detroit, (3).

Brooklyn—Primo Flores, 1351, Puerto Rico, knocked out Pete Galiano, 140, Baltimore, (4).

Golf Jamboree Reservations

DVID Smith, in charge of reservations for the Butte des Morts golf club 1939 Jamboree, last night issued a special request for members and guests to make arrangements with him immediately for attending the affair. While reservations have been coming in steadily, the number who have definitely signified their intentions of attending is too small to enable the jamboree committee to complete its purchases of food and prizes.

Since the event is to be held Thursday, Smith has asked those who plan to participate in the jamboree to telephone him at the Badger Printing company.

BARNYARD ANIMALS

In a barnyard where geese are kept, a visitor—especially a small boy or girl—may be "chased" by a goose. Geese are likely to stretch out their necks and hiss, making them seem rather fearful, though they do not often hurt anyone.

Goose with polo pony friend.

Barnyard geese are noted for the friendships they make with other animals. A British nobleman, Lord Lilford, once owned a goose which grew friendly with a crane. The birds would feed together, and all through the day would stay not more than a few yards apart.

Another goose became the "master" of a stable of polo ponies. This goose made a special friend of one of the ponies. In telling of the case, Mr. Lewis Spence states that the pony and goose would go with each other to the fields and feed together in silent friendship.

Our barnyard geese have come from wild geese which were tamed long ago. The ancient Egyptians kept geese, and the birds were common on farms in Europe during the Middle Ages, the same as they are today.

Geese are sent to the market to be sold for food. Their flesh is very rich, too rich for the taste of many persons. Yet the goose is popular in some homes for winter holiday feasts.

More than a dozen kinds of wild geese are known. Among them are the grayling geese which used to nest freely in the marshes of the British Isles. They seldom breed in Great Britain today, except in northern Scotland.

Wild grayling geese are believed to have been the ancestors of most of the geese in barnyards of Europe and North America. In Asia the domestic geese seem to have come mainly from wild Chinese geese.

The most common of the wild geese on this continent, "Canada geese," also called "big gray geese" and "long-necked geese," they breed chiefly in Canada, great numbers of them making their nests around Hudson Bay and in the Yukon valley.

In the early autumn, flocks of Canada geese head southward. They are noted for their custom of forming a V when they migrate. The leader, almost always a gander, flies at the front and we may say he makes "the point" of the V. "Honk, honk!" cry the geese as they fly and the sound may remind us of the old-fashioned automobile horn. The birds go to southern parts of the United States to spend the winter. Many of them winter in Florida.

Winner of Playoff Will Meet CYO Team in Pennant Series

Kaukauna — The first of two playoffs which will ultimately determine the city softball champion is set for 8 o'clock this evening on the lights of the diamond.

Taverns and Goldin Metals, teams which tied for the second half title with four and one records, will clash. The CYO outfit, first half winner, will play tonight's victor in a two out of three series for the city title.

The Metals, a new team which did not participate in first half play, will go into tonight's battle favored to win. The main reason will be Bill Kuchelmeister, star hurler who has pitched 2-hit games in his last two starts.

On the receiving end of Kuchelmeister's slants will be Melner, Glen Miller, Vic Gerhart, Ralph Johnson and Toby Kitz will see infield action, with Cliff Kemp, Jack Burton and Abe Goldin in the outer garden.

Alger May Work

Bill Alger, a fast ball hurler who is mighty hard to beat when he remembers the location of the plate, or Earl Mollet, who hurled the Taverns to three second half wins, will start for the Metals' opponents. Alger pitched for them the first half, with Mollet taking over when Alger went to cherry camp.

Pebbs Kappell will be behind the plate, with Junior Martens, Jay Balgie, Carl Schuler and Ves Kappell in the infield. Playing deep will be Viv Nettekoven, Joey Vils, Mark Rohan and Gertz.

Tonight's winner will meet the CYO in a series under the lights probably next week. The Kaukauna Klubs, last year champs, were eliminated from this season's race when defeated in their final second half game by Kappell Taverns.

Wednesday Is Deadline For Horseshoe Entries

Kaukauna — Entries for the city horseshoe tournament will be taken up to Wednesday evening, Clifford H. Kemp, recreational director, announced yesterday. Champions have been determined in most sports as the summer program comes to close. This afternoon the 1940 American Legion junior baseball team is to play Kimberly at the local park.

Fox Valley Girls Team Is Organized

Lucille Giordana, Maddy Horn Will be Playing Managers

Kaukauna — Girl softball stars from Fox river valley cities have been added to a Kaukauna contingent to form the Fox River Valley Girl All-Stars, with a schedule of games now being drawn. Les Arndt, business manager, said this morning. A practice game will be played soon against Little Chute on the Kaukauna field.

The organization will be a permanent one, with teams in both softball and basketball, to play teams from Wisconsin and other states, Arndt explained. A game has been arranged with Appleton next week. Proceeds from this contest will go toward purchasing bright red and white uniforms.

Lucille Giordana of Kaukauna and Maddy Horn of Beaver Dam will be playing managers of the squad. Maddy Horn is probably the best known girl softball player in the state. Others being signed up for the team are Virginia Van Dyke, Jean Panabaker and Mildred Maley, Kaukauna; Mary Shoman and Mary Dawson, Neenah; Lucy Schroeder, Elsie Schroeder and Mary Steidl, Oshkosh; Ruth Van Handel, Clara Salm, Rose and Marion Fredericks, Appleton; Dorothy Van Hogan, Kimberly; Ellen Fredericks, Sylvia Runge, Angeline Runge and Mildred Schoenicke, New London.

Manufacturers Get Booklets Showing Kaukauna Facilities

Kaukauna — Manufacturers all over the country who produce certain commodities have received copies of "Industrial Kaukauna," 32-page booklet prepared by Francis Bowman, Madison economist, to advertise the city's industrial advantages. Locally available labor, raw materials, distribution facilities and other factors suggest particular industries as likely to succeed here. Among these are paper making, paper converting, processed foods, evaporated milk, shoes or gloves, cotton goods, woolen or knitted goods, machine tools and iron or aluminum parts.

In addition to these general lines three industries have been singled out by Bowman as having requirements that Kaukauna could well satisfy.

Could Aid Canners

Can manufacturing is the first of these. Within overnight shipping distance of Kaukauna are 50 canning plants and 24 condenseries, using 250,000 cans annually. They are now supplied from Chicago and Toledo. Tin plate is obtainable overnight from Chicago. Inasmuch as the base price of cans is determined by the nearest plant, now Madison, a real advantage to northeastern packers would accrue from a Kaukauna location, Bowman explained.

The production of lactic acid, which comes from whey, a byproduct of cheese production, could easily be carried on here. This acid is used by the food, woolen and leather industries. Of greater importance is its rising use in the manufacture of plastics. Within a 25-mile radius of Kaukauna an unlimited amount of whey, now fed to hogs, is available, Bowman stated.

Magnesium refining is another industry for which the city's resources are well suited. The use of magnesium alloys is making rapid strides, rising from 800,000 pounds to 4,000,000 pounds in three years. Dolomite, a magnesium limestone which outcrops at Kaukauna, is one of the source materials. Reduction is by acid and electrolysis. About 20 kilowatts per pound of metal is needed. The initial power output of the Outagamie project would produce about 75,000 pounds monthly; its ultimate power about 215,000 pounds. Byproducts are calcium and chlorine, which are needed in the Fox river valley paper industry.

Will Install Generator

Upon the plant's completion it is planned to install one 2,400 kilowatt hydro turbo generator. The city will ultimately be able to develop 6,000 kilowatt hours through additions. According to a certificate of authority of the state public service commission it is expected that by 1944 there will be a sufficient increase in power demands of the Kaukauna utility to absorb the entire output of the new generating system.

Upon the completion of the project in 1940 Kaukauna will have taken full advantage of its unequalled 50-foot drop in the Fox river. The two plants, each with 22-foot drops, and a flow of six feet through the city account for this great natural resource.

FOUR BLIND DATES

By Edwin Rutt

Spunk. He studied her for a second. She was a good looking, too. "Didn't exactly swear at you," he said now, a little grumpily. "Always swear at everybody. Don't mean anything by it."

"That's okay, Pope," Miss South said. "Come on over and sit by me and let's let our hair down."

On the point of obeying this command Richard Craftonbury was diverted by a slight noise behind him.

Jonathan Harland was coming along the hall conveying a most attractive young woman.

Spiritually, Richard Craftonbury was over on the divan letting down his hair with Miss Dorothy South. But, corporeally, he remained in the doorway of the living-room. Now that he had culled a speaking acquaintance with Miss South, he was willing to join the party. But under the circumstances, it was a point of honor with him to bawl somebody out before becoming a member of it. And here, made to order, was his nephew Jonathan. He took a breath and began.

"You young rascalion," he thundered.

Packs halted, an arm around "U-Uncle D-Dick," he stammered, mouth agape. He had thought Uncle Dick safe in Europe. Richard Craftonbury whipped out a cigar. He could bawl-out better when champing on something.

"Well," he snapped, "speak up. Don't stand there like a driving idiot. Explain this! I demand an explanation of this! I come home from Europe for peace and quiet and what do I find? What do I find? Hey? A brawl. A shambles going on in my house. A blowout, a jamboree and every light in the place blazing." He moved to the hall table and pounded it. He could enunciate better when pounding. "I won't have it, I tell you, I WON'T HAVE IT."

Under this barrage Jonathan Harland Adams wilted like a rose in the desert.

"Nothing but a little party," he muttered sheepishly.

"Party? Ha!" Richard Craftonbury's cigar bobbed up and down like a light on rough water. "I'll knock your party into a cocked hat." Mr. Adams had not the slightest intention of dispersing the gathering but, at this point, he thought it strengthened his position to avow such. "Entering my house, tearing up my living-room, playing my radio. I ought to have the law on you. Dammit, I will have the law on you. I... Ouch!"

Something had pinched his arm. Mr. Adams went half a foot into the air, came down and wheeled as he landed. Miss Dorothy South stood at his elbow, a glass in her hand.

"Let the engine idle a while, Pops," she said, "and drink this. I'll put a wave in your hair."

"Ha!" roared Richard Craftonbury. "You pinched me."

"You're lucky I didn't make you stand in the corner," said Miss South. "Kicking up such a fuss in the middle of a swell party. Here!" She thrust the glass at him. Richard Craftonbury drained it at a gulp.

"That's good liquor," he announced, wiping his mouth.

"It ought to be, Pops," said Miss South. "It's yours."

This called to Richard Craftonbury's mind another item which he had omitted to mention while addressing his nephew. He swung around to the spot where he had left Tacks.

"You Old Grizzly Bear!"

"So!" he shouted furiously. "Drinking my liquor... He broke off suddenly. "Here, what's this? Where is the young jackanapes?"

But Tacks had converted the aftermath of Miss South's pinch. Taking Packy with him, he had departed to a far corner of the room.

"Now, Pops," said Miss South, "you let that nice grandson of yours alone."

Richard Craftonbury swelled like a puff added in wrath.

"Grandson?" he bellowed. "He's my nephew. Who do you think I am, Methusalem?"

"Oh, skip it, Pops!" said Miss South. "I was only kidding. Honest, you don't even look old enough to have a nephew." She tucked her arm through his. "Come on now! Show me over this castle of yours. You've probably got secret stairways and live ghosts n'everything."

Nothing she could have suggested would have been better calculated to mollify Richard Craftonbury. He loved exhibiting the sumptuousness of Saltair Acres.

"All right," he said. "Let's leave these caterwauling idiots."

They crossed the room and entered the library.

"This is the library," Richard Craftonbury announced.

"I'll remember," said Miss South. "I won't speak above a whisper."

"Five thousand volumes here," pursued Richard Craftonbury, waving his hand.

"Well, Pops, that's a lot of volumes. A little light reading for the cold winter nights, eh?"

Mr. Adams propelled her through the library into a smaller room.

"This," he said "is what I use for a den."

"Why, you old grizzly bear, you," said Miss South.

Then, suddenly, she started. This was the room she had described to the Chiseler and Ape Coletti. And even now the Ape was lurking beneath the porch upon which it opened, nursing his black-jack. As this thought crossed her mind Richard Craftonbury began steering her toward the French doors.

"I'll show you around outside first," he decreed.

"No," she said quickly. "Let's not go out this way."

Richard Craftonbury regarded her.

"Why not?" he wanted to know.

"It's bad luck going out of side doors."

"Rubbish." His grip tightened on her arm.
